Departure Of Hermine Is More Than Inspection Trip, Says Writer

WILLIAM IS TRAGIC FIGURE

Domestic Difficulties Are Given As Cause For Separation

By Associated Press
York, Eng.—Reports of a serious disagreement between former Emperor William and Princess Hermine, wife of a few months which have cropped out from time to time since the first of the year, are revived Monday by the Doorn Correspondent of the Yorkshire Evening News. The correspondent states that he has learned "from a singularly well informed source," that the ex-emperor and his wife have definitely separated as a result of domestic troubles.

Then Princess Hermine left Doorn, which she went ostensibly to inspect family estates in Germany but really, asserts the correspondent, as gone to live with her near relatives.

a actual separation is over a fortnight," he declared "but the secret is well kept."

emperor's life is reported to be "solitary" and his establishment very simple, for although his private means are still ample, they are not under his control.

In the article the ex-emperor is described as one of the most tragic figures in Europe today.

RE-ELECTION DOES NOT WORRY HARDING

President Too Busy With Present Tasks, Says Secretary Davis

By Associated Press
Boston.—President Harding is not worried by the prospect of being re-elected in 1924, Secretary Davis told the Women's Republican club of Boston, in a speech here Monday. The president's secretary of labor after expressing his views of woman's place in politics, discussed Mr. Harding's attitude toward the forthcoming presidential campaign.

"The president's plans seem to be worrying many of our people," Secretary Davis said. "I think that every newspaperman I have talked to for the past month or more has wanted to know what they are. Well, I'll tell you some things about the president."

"President Harding is probably the poorest advertiser in the United States today. The quietest corner grocer in Boston could undoubtedly give him a handicap and then beat him at the game of getting himself out as they call it, to the public."

"President Harding reminds me of the man who was made boss of the city, back in the days when I worked with my hands. This man will work as hard as any man I have ever known. He never had been engaged in any of the ordinary disputes about the plant. But the quiet man got the job. And we found out why. He worked at his job. He does not talk about it. Well, that is President Harding. He works at his job. He does not talk about it."

WAGNUSON MUST EAT WITHOUT KNIVES, FORKS

By Associated Press
Wisconsin Rapids.—John Magnuson convicted last Saturday on a charge of murder in the first degree for the slaying of Mrs. James R. Chapman, who killed Mrs. James R. Chapman, expressed hope in his cell in the Wood County Jail Monday that Judge Byron B. Clark would grant him a new hearing Wednesday at which time he is scheduled to appear for sentence. According to the reporter, he will endeavor to procure the services of a new lawyer to plead his case.

Extreme precautions were taken over the weekend and Monday so as to prevent Magnuson from injuring himself during his intermittent delirium.

Forks and knives have been forbidden by jail officials from entering the cell, while a companion is always stationed with the prisoner.

Y. H. TURNBULL, KENOSHA MANUFACTURER, IS DEAD

By Associated Press
Kenosha.—William H. Turnbull, 77, prominent in the industrial life of southern Wisconsin, was found dead in his bed here Monday morning. He was believed to have been victim of heart disease. Some time ago he was superintendent of the Fish Wagon company, Racine, widow, Helen Hastings Turnbull, survives him.

WRECK HALTS TRAFFIC

Walshville, Ia.—Traffic on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road through this country was stopped Monday and trains are being rerouted over the Chicago and North Western between Tama and Slater, as result of a derailment and wreck of 22 freight cars of an east-bound Milwaukee train, a mile and a west of Ferguson Sunday. No one was injured.

NEXT MONTHS WILL MAKE OR BREAK HARDING

President Will Return To Washington In Week To Tackle Big Problems

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1923, by the Post Pub. Co.
St. Augustine, Fla.—President Harding's vacation has been a distinct success. Few business men could say as much for the president has amazed even his intimate friends by his faculty of obtaining complete detachment. Seldom is a chief executive able to get similar rest in the white house, notwithstanding the isolation that is possible there with a corps of secretaries and ushers. The very atmosphere reeks with responsibilities.

When Mr. Harding left Washington he didn't even take a personal stenographer to handle code messages or to take dictation. He was determined that he would transcend the most important business and he didn't expect to set aside any hour of the day even for routine.

STARTS TO WORK

Not until this week did the president's program change. He now is working part of the day and will continue to do the same at Augusta, Ga., most another Mr. Harding who is lacking the tasks of the presidency now as compared with the jaded being who wearily bade goodby to the national capital a month ago.

Refreshed and stimulated by absolute rest, the president goes back to his job the end of the coming week prepared for the hardest kind of a struggle. With congress away, the nation's executive will occupy the center of the stage by himself for the first time in many years. No longer will the news of congress, the speeches and controversies, compete for attention on the first pages. Mr. Harding will have a better opportunity for detailed consideration by the press of his executive acts. It means a great deal to the president for upon the impression that he makes in the next few months will depend to a great extent whether any substantial opposition will be developed notwithstanding the fact that at the moment his friends are serenely confident of the outcome.

MAKES OR BREAKS

Mr. Harding can "make or break" his political future in the next few months and nobody knows that better than he does himself. With the eyes not only of the politicians in his own party but those of the other party focused on the president he can become the center of attack as well as aggressive offense. His instinct is to tread cautiously and "play safe" avoid

TIMME, HERO OF CIVIL WAR, DIES

Former Secretary Of State Succumbs In His Home In Kenosha

By Associated Press
Kenosha.—Death claimed one of the most prominent citizens of southern Wisconsin on Sunday when the Hon. Ernest C. Timme, 79, a hero of the battlefield of Chickamauga, former secretary of state of Wisconsin and for many years auditor of the U. S. treasury, died at his home here from weakness due to his advancing years.

In Civil war days he had heard President Lincoln's first call for volunteers and although only 18 enlisted with company C of the first Wisconsin infantry. For his personal bravery on the battlefield at Chickamauga, where he lost his left arm, he was promoted to captaincy and later he was advanced to the rank of colonel.

Returning to Kenosha, after the war he was elected county clerk which post he held for fifteen years. In 1881 he was elected secretary of state serving in that position for nine years and being many times mentioned prominently for governor. He was appointed an auditor of the United States treasury department by President Harrison and named to higher posts in the postoffice and state departments by Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt.

Surviving him are a wife, one son and two daughters. The funeral services, in charge of the Kenosha post of the Grand Army of the Republic of which he was a past commander, will be held at the home here on Tuesday afternoon.

FLASHY DRESSED MEN SLUG, ROB WOMAN OF $700

By Associated Press
Madison.—Two flashy dressed young men forced their way into the home of Mrs. Jane Barclay, 75, here Sunday night and after slugging her, took $700 in cash and escaped.

The two robbers knocked at the door and asked to see the son of Mrs. Barclay. When advised that he was not at home they forced an entrance.

RUSSIA DELAYS DEATH IMPOSED UPON VICAR

By Associated Press
Moscow.—The death sentence imposed on Vicar General Butchkevich has not yet been carried out, it was announced Monday at noon.

FEW CONTESTS IN JUDICIAL VOTE TUESDAY

Races Are Packing State Wide Features—Crownhart To Be Reelected

Madison.—The Wisconsin Judicial election Tuesday will be confined to local contests, without any state wide feature to lend general interest. Municipal, county and various minor county positions will be filled by balloting in the localities affected.

Justice Charles H. Crownhart, who will be elected to the Supreme court without a contest. They are C. M. Davidson, in the Thirtieth circuit; Gullick N. Risors in the Fifteenth circuit; Chester A. Fowler in the Eighteenth circuit and William B. Quinlan in the Twentieth circuit.

Three judges for branches of the second judicial circuit in Milwaukee are to be chosen, with contests being waged there. A civil judge for the Fourth branch and another for the Fifth branch of the Milwaukee circuit, is to be selected.

In Green-co, Judge John M. Becker, appointed by Governor Blaine to succeed Judge J. L. Sherman, is up for election. Judge Becker serving in this position before the war was ousted after being charged with violating the espionage law. County judges are elected in Marathon-co and Winnebago-co.

In Douglas-co a judge of the superior court is to be elected, and in Rayfield, Barron, Iron, Oneida, Rusk, Sawyer, Sheboygan and Vilas-co, municipal judges are up for election. Municipal judges are also to be chosen in Langlade, Polk, and Rock-co.

Superintendents of schools will be elected in each superintendency district of the state for the regular two year term.

6 HOUR DAY BILL TO GET HEARING

Tucker Measure Up Wednesday—Other Proposals To Get Public Test

Madison.—The Tucker assembly bill limiting the work day of all employees in Wisconsin to eight hours is scheduled for hearing before the senate committee on state affairs, Wednesday afternoon. The bill would also limit overtime work and would make it a misdemeanor for an employer or contractor to violate its provisions.

The Olsen assembly bill prohibiting the employment of women for more than eight hours a day is up for hearing Thursday before the senate committee on education and public welfare. This bill and the Tucker bill both passed the assembly by a good margin.

The joint committee on Highways will continue its hearing Wednesday on two highway committee tax bills, one to levy a 2 cent per gallon tax on gasoline sale and the other to assess a license fee graduated according to weight on all motor vehicles.

The finance committee will have before it the Budget assembly bill, abolishing the service recognition board and creating a soldiers' rehabilitation board to provide for the rehabilitation and hospitalization of war veterans.

Another important bill before the finance committee Thursday is the Dahl bill, introduced at the request of Governor Blaine, which provides for a permanent civil service commission and carries an appropriation.

STAGE DARING ROBBERY IN HEART OF ST. LOUIS

By Associated Press
St. Louis.—Five or six men, armed with sawed off shotguns, held up a mail truck in the business section of the city, took a quantity of mail including nine pouches of registered letters, locked the driver and a messenger in the cage of the truck and escaped.

The truck was on its way from the main postoffice to a suburban at the time of the robbery. The holdup occurred in the rear of the stock brokerage district. Postoffice inspectors said they would be unable to estimate the value of the stolen pouches until a check had been made. It was said, however, that there was no big bank mail in the loot.

BULL KILLS FARMER NEAR BARRON, WISCONSIN

By Associated Press
Janesville.—The body of Frank Montgomery, 45, a farmer, living two miles from Barron, Wis., was instantly killed Sunday by a bull, which was brought to Evansville, his former home for burial. The leaves a wife and three children and three sisters. Mrs. John Craig, Clinton, Ill.; Mrs. Earl Adams, Belleville, Wis.; and Miss Irene Montgomery, Detroit, Mich., and two brothers, John and Owen, of Evansville.

Allies Request Turks To Renew Near East Parley

LILLIAN DENIES

Powers Bow To Ismet Pasha—Accept Terms In Principle

ENGLAND ISSUES NOTE

Sultan Who Fled From Angora Government, Planning To Come Back

London.—The British foreign office has issued the text of an identical note from the Allies addressed to Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation which has the Near East peace proposals in charge, inviting the Turks to a resumption of the peace conference at Lausanne. The note offers to accept in principle Turkey's proposed redrafting of the convention relating to the judicial status of foreigners in Turkey in order to meet Turkey's ideas of reciprocity to such an extent as may be considered practicable.

URGE FACT REDISCUSSION

The only stipulation is that the powers can not be regarded as pledged to any changes in the Lausanne treaty as recently suggested.

With regard to Ismet Pasha's request that the economic clauses should be detached from the treaty and negotiated subsequently between the interested parties, the note says explicitly that the conference clauses must be redrafted at Lausanne concomitantly, but adds:

"The inviting powers believe it should be possible in the course of the new negotiations, and by means of some mutual concessions, to arrive at an agreement upon clauses of this nature to be inserted in the treaty."

WOMAN NEW FIGURE IN MODEL MURDER

Police Question Sweetheart Of Man Intimately Acquainted With Beauty

By Associated Press
New York.—A woman now is the nearest central figure in police pursuit clues to a solution of the mystery of the murder of Dorothy Keenan who was chloroformed to death, a score of days ago.

It was learned Monday that the police had for some time been trailing the sweetheart of a man who for several days has been under suspicion chiefly because he has been unable to account for his actions for the hours between midnight preceding the murder and 8 o'clock the next morning.

The woman, they said, was being trailed in the hope that she might attempt to dispose of some of the jewels or other articles that were stolen from the model's West Fifty-seventh apartment. She already has been interviewed by the police, having provided the suspected man with an alibi for the hours before and after the murder with the exception of the eight that still remain unexplained.

The suspect is believed to have known the slain model intimately, the authorities said.

N. Y. POLICE BREAK WEEK'S CRIME WAVE

By Associated Press
New York.—Police officials, with the city's force still working overtime, declared Monday they had broken the crime wave which gripped New York last week. The increased body of patrolmen and doubled precautions will be continued for a time, it was announced. Police Commissioner Enright was reported home from a holiday in Florida, ready to take charge of the situation.

A widespread outbreak of crime on Easter Sunday was checked, the police say, through the departments' preparations.

CLAN ISSUE ENTERS EAST ST. LOUIS ELECTION

By Associated Press
East St. Louis, Ill.—Intense feeling and keen rivalry between Ku Klux Klan and anti-klan forces marks the closing hours of the municipal election campaign here, according to a news article printed Monday by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Three of the eight candidates for city commission are said to have received the endorsement of the Klan, with the understanding that should they be elected, non-klan members and Protestants would be appointed to city offices. A mayor and four commissioners are to be elected Tuesday.

COURT RULES IN FAVOR OF STATE TOBACCO POOL

By Associated Press
Madison.—A permanent injunction restraining the M. H. Beckadahl company from interfering with contracts of the Northern Wisconsin Tobacco Pool, a cooperative association of tobacco growers, was granted by Judge E. V. Werner, Shawano, in a decision handed down Saturday. This decision sustains the validity of the pool contracts which the private company claimed to have been entered into in restraint of trade.

BILLS ON EDUCATION FACE VOTE THIS WEEK

Madison.—Two important bills affecting the administration of educational affairs in Wisconsin are scheduled for a vote in the senate and assembly.

In the senate, the Carey bill, abolishing the state board of education is up for endorsement on Wednesday. In the assembly the Dahl bill, which would abolish the state board of education, the board of normal regents and the board for the certification of teachers and create in lieu thereof a new state board of education to supervise all educational affairs, including the teacher-training activities is on Thursday's calendar.

STUDENTS' UNION TO CONTROL CHINA, HE SAYS

Seattle.—Dr. William Liu, 28, who arrived this week to study the United States at a visiting board of "What is America?" declared Monday that the Students' union of which he is president will be masters of China in ten years. Dr. Liu is president of Williams college, Shanghai.

Dr. Liu said that students union had more than 2,500,000 members was the only movement of the common people in China. Among his purposes are popular education, making an anti-Japanese boycott effective, fighting Japanese domination and fostering closer relations with the United States.

EXAGGERATED

Klan Visits Church; Man Rips Masks

Pittsburg.—Elmer L. Kidney, a lawyer, who Sunday tore the masks from half a dozen hooded men in the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal church, Monday refused to discuss the incident other than to say he had plans which would develop in due time.

The Rev. Dr. L. B. Urmy, who was in the pulpit at church in the midst of Easter morning services when the men entered, said he would have nothing more to do with the matter. Any action Mr. Kidney may take will be for himself and not for the church.

PASTOR TELLS OF INCIDENT

"So far as I am concerned," said Dr. Urmy, "the incident is closed. These men masked and robed walked into our church and were really disturbing a religious meeting when I invited them to retire."

"Such disturbance is in violation of the law, but I meant what I said when I said they were welcome to remain if they would remove their disguises."

Mr. Kidney who reported the incident to the Pittsburg police is an officer of the church and was standing near the door when the two men, masked and robed, entered the room. They were followed by ten others.

TEARS OFF MASKS

As the minister offered them to leave Kidney moved toward them and they left the building. Outside the church were a number of automobiles and to these the men hurried, but Kidney, it is stated, succeeded in unmasking a number of them before they gained the cars.

It was stated Sunday night that the attention of the district attorney's office would be called to the matter with a view to prosecution under the law prohibiting disturbance of religious meetings.

USES SHOTGUN IN ATTEMPT TO TAKE HIS LIFE

Frank Hartman Of New London May Die As Result Of Wound

New London.—Frank Hartman, a man of about 60 years, lies at his home here with little chance for recovery as the result of an attempt to take his life about 11:30 Monday morning.

Hartman obtained a sawed-off shotgun and discharged its contents into his side. The deed was committed at his home. Persons who heard the gun went to his home and found him lying in a pool of blood, carried him to his bed and summoned a surgeon. The buckshot had torn his side severely and part of them entered his lung. Little hope is held out for his recovery.

No statement was obtained from the man as to the reason for his act. It is believed that he fired the shot during a fit of despondency over his troubles. It is said that he left no note before committing the act.

HOLSTEINS SMASH PRODUCTION MARKS

In Junior Two Year Class Waukegan Cow Is High For Year

Chicago.—The 1922 leaders in the seven classes of different ages of purebred Holstein cows produced an average of 29,035 pounds of milk and 1,250 pounds of butter of milk and the full age and senior four-year class produced an average of 21,115 pounds of milk and 1,317 pounds of butter.

Countess Matador Segis, the senior three-year champion from Washington, produced 25,517 pounds milk and 1,150 pounds butter. Junior three-year champion, Princess Maids Veeman, owned by Earl Graham of Compton, Cal., produced 29,628 pounds milk and 1,154 pounds butter. Colony Grebege Valdesa, senior two-year champion, produced 28,371 pounds milk and 1,095 pounds butter. She is owned by Colony farm, Escondido, B. C.

In the junior four-year class, Mamsell Johanna, owned by C. L. Spaulding of Warren, Minnesota, stood highest for the year with a total of 21,115 pounds milk and 1,317 pounds butter.

During the year 12,000 cows were tested for production and since the establishment of the official record 45,000 cows have passed the production test for this age, the report stated. All tests are supervised by state colleges of agriculture. Last year, 113,772 Holsteins were registered with the association.

GLEE CLUB SHARES COLLEGE REUNION

Lawrence Singers Greeted by Alumni There—Work Highly Praised

Wausau was the scene of a Lawrence student reunion when Lawrence College Glee club sang in the First Methodist church in that city. Although the St. Olaf Lutheran choir had given its concert there the evening before the glee club sang to a capacity house, many of whom were Lawrence students and alumni members.

The work of the club has been described very ably by Prof. Dyer of Oshkosh normal school who stated after hearing the concert at Oshkosh that the ensemble work of the 1923 club was much above ordinary and that Dean Carl Waterman's faith in the ability of the club was well founded.

LaVahn Maesch of Appleton has been receiving special mention for his work as accompanist for the club. The members say of him: "He handles the most difficult pieces with ease and many unexpected situations are avoided by the quick manner in which 'Blondy' improvises and changes the music." Mr. Maesch is a freshman at Lawrence college and has been prominent in musical circles for some time. Much of the unusual success of the club has been attributed to him.

ON THE SCREEN

ALL-STAR CAST IN "THE DANGEROUS AGE"

In the selection of the cast for his latest production, "The Dangerous Age," a First National attraction which is coming to the Elite theatre for an engagement of 3 days, John M. Stahl, the noted producer, has more than fulfilled the promise implied by the term "All-Star." Lewis Stone heads the list as "Star." Lewis Stone heads the list as "Star." Lewis Stone heads the list as "Star."

The story is an original from the pen of Francis Irene Reels, and treats interestingly of the domestic problems and affairs of an average American family. It contains a near-tragedy, several melodramatic thrills and plenty of suspense and humor.

The picture takes its name from the theme of a subject that has long been a matter of popular discussion. As a rule, parents point to the "Rapper" period as the dangerous age, while the rising generation insists that the so-called "settled" age really rests on the brink of domestic disaster and infidelity.

In this production Mr. Stahl handles the question in a most effective manner, keeping it free from preachment and getting the most out of every situation.

"The Dangerous Age" is a novel photoplay in a number of respects. The producer demonstrates that it is possible to film a story of real life, containing incidents that can't happen to all of us, and yet impute it with a dramatic intensity that is overpowering.

BREAKS HER ANKLE

Sunday morning a lady going to the early Easter service slipped on the corner of Durkee and Franklin-sts. I hurried from the house to help her and found she had broken her ankle. I called a doctor and she was removed to a hospital. She surely started right but something always takes the joy out of life.

DIDN'T FREEZE THEN

My neighbors have been having trouble with the pipes in their kitchen freezing. I was there on Friday evening when I noticed a hot water bottle wrapped around the pipe. I asked about it and was told that it was their invention to keep the plumbing from freezing up. I was told the next day that the invention had proved successful.

AND WE NEED RAIN TOO

Thursday afternoon I saw a woman come out of a room on the second floor of St. Elizabeth hospital, open an umbrella. And hold it over her head. She was very embarrassed when someone asked her what she was doing. Her mind was occupied with something else and one usually carries an umbrella that way.

PLAYED A JOKE ON HER

Saturday morning about 8 o'clock I was on my way to the grocery store. I passed a young lady who was hurrying to work. I happened to turn around and to my surprise, saw a sock pinned to the collar of her coat.

Just then a lady came along and said "Pardon me, but there is something on your coat." All the young lady could say was "My Stars" and she hurried away blushing.

DRIVERS ARGUE; NO DAMAGE

At 8 o'clock Saturday morning, a Balliet Supply company truck and the Ford truck belonging to the Appleton Department of Streets and a collision at the corner of Walnut-st. and College-ave. The two drivers got out and started an argument which soon drew a crowd. There was little damage done to the trucks, both being driven away on their own power.

ONE LESS PARKING SIGN

Saturday afternoon at four o'clock I spied an unusual accident in front of Gloudeum-Gage store. A large touring car, evidently having a grudge against parking signs, started to climb on to the sidewalk—and the sign before it in the way it was completely demolished. The car was but little damaged—only the splash pan being bent. The brakes were frozen and didn't respond to the driver's action.

JOYFULLY THROWS HIS CRUTCHES AWAY AND WALKS UNAIDED

Milwaukeean Declares He Has No Use For Them Since Tanlac Ended Rheumatism

Another Milwaukee man relates a remarkable experience with Tanlac. Milton Schwanberg, 1124 Third-St., a city salesman for the Yahr & Lange Co., wholesale druggists, says:

"For two and a half months I was down with sciatica rheumatism and couldn't even turn myself in bed. My side and legs hurt terribly. My appetite was gone, and I was as weak and nervous as could be. When I finally got out of bed I had to use crutches and learn to walk all over again. I often wondered whether I would ever get to feeling right again.

"Well, soon after I commenced taking the Tanlac treatment I was able to throw away my crutches and step as lively as any other young man. I am in perfect health now, and can't help but hum and whistle for joy when I think what a wonderful thing Tanlac has been for me."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists—take no substitute. Over 55-million bottles sold.

Hiking Across America With 400-Pound Cart

Asserting that he is the first man to attempt a journey of this nature alone, Henry Harris, of Toronto, arrived in Appleton Saturday afternoon dragging a camp wagon on his walking journey from Toronto to Vancouver and return. Like his predecessor, Leonard Day, who stopped off here on a walking trip around the United States, the man is the guest of the local fire department.

The man is 55 years old, and his camp wagon weighs 400 pounds. In it he keeps his cooking utensils and other travel supplies. He said he has slept in the covered wagon 15 times. He pays for a good share of his expenses by selling postcard pictures of himself. He left Toronto on Dec. 10, and expects to return before next winter. He chose to make the winter trip through the United States because the weather is not so severe here as in Canada. He keeps a diary of his journey which, he says, will be printed in the Toronto papers.

To Seek Bids

The Appleton water commission will at its meeting Monday afternoon be asked to advertise for contractors proposals for trenching several thousand feet of water main. Receiving of reports and other routine business was also to be transacted.

BUS ORDINANCE NOT CONTRARY TO STATE

Measure Used in Appleton Only Involves Traffic Rules, Berg Says

The ruling of the state supreme court against certain provisions of the motorbus ordinance of the city of Superior does not necessarily have bearing on the ordinance that is in force in Appleton, it is held by Theodore Berg, city attorney.

In the Superior case, it was ruled this winter that all questions pertaining to routes, territory, character of service, hours of operation, all regardless of any other service being then furnished in the city are vested in the state railroad commission and beyond municipal interference or restriction.

Mr. Berg pointed out that the bus ordinance in use here is not antagonistic to the bus owners and was enacted only as a method of relieving downtown congestion. It does not restrict operation to any territory, maps out no routes and does not determine the hours of operation. Parking is forbidden in the congested districts, just as any council might limit parking of other automobiles. Discharging passengers in the congested area is not construed as parking, Mr. Berg said. He further stated he has heard no complaints on the ordinance from the bus owners.

Huge Bull Is Butchered On Mackville Farm

Albert C. Henke, Route 4, Mackville, recently slaughtered one of the largest "critters" ever cut into beef in Outagamie-co. The behemoth was a Holstein-Friesian bull, three years old, which had grown so large and vicious that he could not be removed from the stall where he had been held captive for nearly his entire life. The big fellow was shot in his stall and dressed there. The dressed beef weighed 1570 pounds and the hide tipped the scales at 170 pounds.

COUNTY'S WALLET IS BULGING SINCE TAXES WERE PAID

County Clerk's Report Shows Balance Of $135,451 On Feb. 28

With the coffers of the county again filled since the settlement of taxes made with the county treasurer by the various city, village and town treasurers, the finances of Outagamie-co are in excellent condition.

The financial report of John E. Hantschel, county clerk, just issued is based upon the condition of the county's funds as of Feb. 28. The cash balance on that date was $155,451.55. Other funds, including the county taxes in process of collection were $733,610.30, while the bonded indebtedness, also classed as assets, is $1,112,195.14.

Current liabilities of the county are listed at $175,562.14. The bonded indebtedness is constantly diminishing. The net fund balances of the general funds are reported at $248,769.59, while the net fund balances of the various highway funds were $277,256.76. Overdrafts of $4,475.93 in the school supervisors fund, $531.82 in the school library fund and $303.89 in the state patrol fund, had not yet been replaced.

The condition of the general funds, with the new tax levy added, was as follows: Asylum, $550.03; sanatorium, $18,111.18; training school, $3,302.45; school superintendent, $3,053.10; teachers institute, $106.42; county nurse, $1,923.73; soldiers relief, $684.47; blind relief, $4,611.30; mothers pension, $32,698.25; tax redemption, $1,153.70; highway bond and interest, $151,841.38; soldier bonus bonds and interest, $33,559.75; emergency fund, $239.42; dog fund, $1,948.20.

Highway fund balances were as follows: County and town aid, $18,168.58; bridge, $3,236.97; snow removal, $66.93; county-state road and bridge, $8,649.04; road, construction, $174,346.48; garage, $4,104.23; county patrol, $55,325.72; bridge emergency, $2,991.34.

ZANE GREY AGAIN LURING READERS

Everybody Wants "Wanderer Of The Wasteland" At Public Library

"Wanderer of the Wasteland," by Zane Grey has been the most popular book of fiction at Appleton Public library during the last week.

The lure of the desert is the theme of the novel. It tells the story of Adam Larey, a boy of 18 who becomes a fugitive from justice and escapes into the desert where he remains for forty-two years, "a wanderer of the wasteland." He takes a new name and the desert makes a man of him, one strong enough to endure hardship and be brave in face of danger, a man to be feared by his enemies and loved by his friends. The author has managed to convey something of both the horror and fascination of the desolate region through which he wanders.

Adam's life in the desert is for the most part a solitary one, but occasionally he finds other wanderers, prospectors who risk their lives and endure untold hardships in the hope of finding gold. Adam Larey has to fight not only against the parching heat of the desert, but against human enemies as well and in all his battles, spiritual as well as physical he plays a man's part. During Adam's life in Death Valley he meets many different characters and has a part in the tragic ending of the life drama of several of them. The story ends with his finding the girl of whom he has dreamed and with his decision to go back and take the consequences of the crime he believes he has committed.

"The Dim Lantern" by Bailey and "Paint Perfume" by Gale are the other two fiction books which have been in greatest demand this last week at the library. Both are comparatively new books at the local library. "The Dim Lantern" was the most popular book last week.

"Etiquette" by Post is still one of the nonfiction numbers in greatest demand and "Chile" by Elliot is one of the new books on travel which has recently become popular at the local library. A number of new books on travel have become catalogued.

The children have their favorite books as well and at present the boys have been demanding "Don Strong, American," by Heliger, "Including Mother" by Ashman has been the most popular story with the girls.

Pacific Northwest Is Headed For Increase In Lumbering, Canning

Business May Mark Time In 1923 In California, However, Babson Says In His Review Of Conditions In West

Mountain Lake, Florida—Roger W. Babson is resting here having just completed his long trip of inspection throughout the different sections of the United States. He leaves here next week for his home in Wellesley Hills, Mass. On Saturday morning he issued the following statement regarding the business prospects of the Pacific coast. He added, however, that he was unfortunately unable to visit the coast on this trip and this statement is based upon statistical data and reports from his correspondents.

"The Pacific northwest," says Mr. Babson, "is looking forward to better business. Prospects are encouraging for lumber, fishing, shipping, and agriculture. Practically all of the large sawmills of Washington and Oregon are now operating, and production is above normal. A number of mills are even operating two or three eight-hour shifts. Orders for lumber are averaging larger than production in spite of strengthening prices. Many mills have sufficient business on their books to keep them running at capacity for some months. On the whole the lumber outlook is good for some time. Of course, the building boom is largely responsible for this active demand. Later, there may be a lull but I look for active residential building throughout the greater part of 1923."

MUCH COMING
"Salmon canning has a fairly good outlook. Plans have been made for a substantial increase in the pack this year. The employment of more men, and the purchase from ships' chandlers, can-making plants, machinery houses, and food and clothing establishments, will continue to contribute towards better business. From an agricultural standpoint, Washington and Oregon are in a better position than most states. Crop diversification is an outstanding factor. Moreover, the crop yield each year is exceptionally heavy. Apples, hops, berries and small fruits all bring wealth to the grower. Under these conditions, the farmer of the Pacific northwest enters the new crop year in a strong position. This year's crops cannot be fully forecast, but what came through the winter in excellent shape and the canneries appear to have contracted for a large amount of berries and small fruit."

"With lumber production at high levels, with more active cannery operations, than a year ago, with considerable ready cash in the fruit, sheep, and farming country, and with an increase in shipping trade, the Pacific northwest is headed towards a gratifying increase in business. Uniform and complete prosperity cannot be expected for some time and there will be intermediate reactions. The outlook is relatively good, however, and advertising and selling campaigns in this section should produce generously. The prosperous Wenatchee Valley is most attractive; but Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and other Washington and Oregon cities also merit attention."

ESCAPES DEPRESSION
"Regarding California," Mr. Babson says, "the northern part of California has been settling down with the rest of the country. Lumbering, mining, stockraising, wood growing, canning and other lines, have been quite thoroughly liquidated. San Francisco and the bay region have been dull for over a year. For this part of the state a slow but steady improvement is in prospect. Southern California, on the other hand, did not reach the peak of the present cycle until the latter part of 1921. It will doubtless escape the critical phases of the depression; nevertheless, it may not have completed its period of readjustment. "Many factors suggest this outlook for Southern California. I see nothing in any of these factors, however, to occasion alarm. The great diversity of crops and industries upon which California depends and the efficient marketing character of the state should tend to prevent any serious depression. I emphasize the probability of further moderate liquidation, as I know from my correspondence that many look for uninterrupted expansion. For the long pull, California is unquestionably sound; but during 1923, business may mark time. Southern California should be included in all sales campaigns, but as the years progress both sales and credit departments should proceed carefully.

"In the meantime, let me say that business, taking the country as a whole, is making an exceptionally good showing. The Babsonchart stands today at 5 per cent above normal compared with 12 per cent below normal a year ago today."

START FOR APPLETON IN PARDEE HOUSECAR

Attorney Fred V. Heinemann received a letter Saturday from C. A. Pardee, who spent the winter in California, in which the writer said that he and his party, which included Mrs. Heinemann, were about to start for home by way of Arizona in their specially designed car with which they made the trip to the coast last fall. They expect to spend considerable time on the way and may not reach home until late in the spring.

SEEK PERPETUAL CARE OF GRAVES

Legion Will Raise Fund Of $100,000 To Keep Up European Cemeteries

The graves of American soldiers who died and were buried on the battle fields of France and other European countries will have perpetual care, according to an announcement from the state headquarters of the American Legion.

The legion is to raise an endowment fund of $100,000 the income of which will be used for this purpose. The share Wisconsin is expected to contribute to this amount is $3,500.

Provision will be made for the decoration on Memorial day of the graves of all the soldiers who died overseas. This movement is being undertaken by the legion because of fear that without it the graves of soldiers will be neglected after a few years have passed.

Word is to be sent to all posts in the state by F. Ryan Duffy, state commander, asking them to help make the drive for the fund a success.

TOMORROW IS ELECTION DAY

The success or failure of administration of public business rests directly upon the men and women elected to official position and indirectly upon the voters who select them. The voters have ample opportunity to elect the type of officers they believe will best administer the city's business. Tomorrow provides such an opportunity. Tomorrow the voter will have his chance to show his real interest in the public's business by going to the polls and voting for the candidates he believes will serve him and the public best.

The voter who refuses or fails to vote in tomorrow's election fails to do his duty as a citizen. Participation in public affairs, at least to the extent of voting, is as much a duty as paying taxes and abiding by laws.

Six aldermen will be elected in the city of Appleton tomorrow. These aldermen will face very serious problems in the next two years and it behooves the people to be careful in their choice of representatives in the council. Tomorrow is their opportunity to select the men they want and if they fail to make a choice they are not bearing their share of the burden of government.

In Outagamie county, outside of the cities of Appleton and Kaukauna, a county superintendent of schools is to be elected. Much depends upon a careful choice for this position and the voters eligible, to make a choice for this office are urged to go to the polls to express themselves.

Tomorrow's election is important. No good citizen will show his lack of interest in public affairs by neglecting to vote.

A CLEAN BILL OF HEALTH

Wisconsin is one of the most conservative states in the Union. The charge that it is radical in its politics and in its governmental policies and legislation is without foundation. It is the most friendly of states toward manufacturing and all forms of industry. Its politicians at Madison have only the deepest solicitude for capital and investment. The legislature is as meek as a lamb and wouldn't hurt business in Wisconsin for anything in the world. Wisconsin's reputation among her sister states is of the very highest. Outside capital looks with longing eyes on this state as a place for investment. Neither taxation nor legislative policy has retarded Wisconsin's industrial development.

If you don't believe all this, read the report of the state tax commission to the legislature, submitted with timely consideration on the heels of Governor Blaine's tax proposals. The report is a reply, for the information of the legislature and the blandishment of the public, to the charge that manufacturing establishments might be driven from the state by heavier income taxation. Of the four conclusions stated in the report, three of them recite in different language a denial that taxation or Wisconsin has driven industry out of the state or prevented it from coming in.

We have no doubt that Chicago could with equal facility and agility prove to the satisfaction at least of its politicians that it is the most crime-free city in the world. It could produce statistics to show that murder there is rare, in comparison with other cities; that gunmen are as scarce as hen's teeth and that there is almost no robbery or vice. It might even delude itself into believing, on the solemn assurance of its office-holders, that it was the best governed city in America. But the conviction would not extend beyond the corporate limits. The rest of the country knows pretty well how Chicago is governed, and it also knows about its "freedom" from crime.

The tax commission may convince the legislature and Governor Blaine that Wisconsin is the best governed state in the Union. It may convince the organization of politicians down there that our laws are the most conservative and that our taxation, even with the proposed revision upward, is the slightest to be found anywhere; it may convince them that an increase in the cost of boards, commissions and departments in ten years from $5,000,000 to $20,000,000 was a legitimate and altogether praiseworthy "development" of economical government. They may satisfy themselves all around that industry loves to come to Wisconsin and that the development of the state has in no wise been hampered by its radicalism. They may even shake hands with themselves over Wisconsin's splendid reputation for conservatism and sound legislation, and they may deceive a fair percentage of the people of this state into agreeing with them. Facts mean nothing to them. But outside the limits of Wisconsin it is a different story. There Wisconsin is known better than it knows itself, or at least better than the politicians would have it know itself.

POLITICAL ISSUES OF 1923

President Harding is said to hold the opinion that the big issue in 1924 will hinge on economic problems and the campaign will resemble, in the main, those of 1896, 1900 and 1904. The people will be agitated over the safest measures to restore or preserve prosperity.

It is an exceptionally wise and far sighted prophet who could peer into the next presidential contest and forecast the issues, near as the campaign is at hand. Yet it is a rather reasonable conjecture that social and economic problems will control.

If the affairs of Europe are readjusted in the comparatively near future, and our business and the business of Europe are conducted on more or less parallel levels, there will be so much prosperity that economic matters may become of secondary importance. But it seems to be quite likely that questions of taxes and foreign trade, which are essentially economic issues, will be matters of general concern.

RUINATION EFFECTED BY SOVIETISM

No sadder and more convincing argument against communism or socialism, both being the same, could be presented than that which is contained in the array of facts with which the League of Nations exposes the utter failure of Russian sovietism. In the plainest terms, giving clear illustrations, the League shows how the soviet government oppressed the farmers and ruined agriculture in order to maintain the socialist industrialists living in the cities.

It is an impressive account of deliberate political incompetency and trickery. The famine and the suffering of the people are traced directly to communist contriving. The soviet government, the report shows, purposely broke down agriculture in order to achieve, if possible, its schemes for the nationalization of property and industry.

Here is authentic and reliable testimony about communism. Communism could be no better in the United States than in Russia. Its consequences would be the same wherever it might be attempted.

In a socialist or Communist government the state is the power. The state is the proprietor. The state is the master. The individual has neither liberty nor rights. Socialism is the same, in reality, as autocracy, except that it is even more dictatorial, tyrannical and destructive. The only system which realizes liberty is that which recognizes individual rights and individual freedom.

THE BABY'S BIRTHRIGHT

Several weeks before the baby's arrival a clear fluid is occasionally secreted by the breasts; a few days before and after the baby's arrival this changes to a heavier, yellow, fluid (secreted in drops) called colostrum, which is highly important for the institution of normal nutrition in the baby. The colostrum imperceptibly changes into normal breast milk—not at any particular time, but gradually during the three days after the birth of the baby. There is no particular moment at which the milk comes in. The breasts gradually become more tense or full, sometimes uncomfortably distended for a day or two, until the baby begins to nurse regularly and vigorously.

Now here is where Mrs. Camp too often takes a hand with disturbing, painful and sometimes disastrous effects upon the unfortunate mother and great injury to the prospects of the baby. Mrs. Camp is always obsessed with the notion of a "caked breast"; the preventive or remedial measures she would have adopted against this bugaboo are generally of such character that well, the amateur or unsophisticated mother who follows her suggestions should be prepared for the worst.

The best protection against all these troubles and dangers is (1) putting the baby to the breast every four hours by the clock, beginning 12 hours after birth, and shortening the nursing interval to three hours after the third day; and (2) a rigid routine of cleanliness, surgical cleanliness—asepsis—for the first six weeks, as described in the paragraph to follow.

A suitable tray or pan should be equipped with these articles:

1. A glass stoppered bottle of S. S. B. A. (saturated solution of boric acid in water—which means all the boric acid the water will take up when still warm after boiling.)

2. A covered jar which has been boiled or scalded and filled with pledgets of absorbent cotton wrapped around the ends of toothpicks—all sterilized by baking half an hour or by steaming and drying out.)

3. A small glass or cup, also boiled or scalded.

The routine aseptics which is necessary to prevent inflammation and abscess formation is difficult, for one not a physician or a trained nurse to understand or practice; here are the essentials:

Invariably, just before and after nursing, the nipples should be carefully washed with a little of the boric acid solution, which should be poured into the glass for this purpose and thrown away after using. The S. S. B. A. should be applied to the nipples by means of the cotton pledgets; never should fingers touch the nipples.

If the nipples are very tender anoint them with a bit of this oil, applying the oil with one of the cotton pledgets:

Tincture of benzoin 1 dram

Liquid petrolatum 2 ounces

The liquid petrolatum should be sterilized first by boiling it in a water bath or double boiler. The young mother cannot be too careful or painstaking in following out this aseptic routine without interruption or omission for the first six weeks of the nursing period.

If the breasts feel heavy and sore in the first day or two of nursing this is a wise practice:

1. The mother should limit her intake of water or other fluids to a minimum for a day or two.

2. A snug, not tight, bandage, however, or pressure should be worn to support the breasts, but only for a few days.

3. The baby regularly put to the breast; if this is not possible, the breasts regularly emptied by expression as the physician instructs.

4. The mother may take a purge; such as a bottle of solution of citrate of magnesia, or any good cathartic.

"Caked breast" disappears under this routine. Threatening inflammation does not materialize.

Case Of Dad Versus Daughter

My father insists that tonsils are in the body for a purpose, and the appendix, too, and he declares life is shortened an average of seven years if the tonsils or appendix are removed.—S. A.

Answer—Father indulges in too much speculation. Perhaps the adenoids or lymphoid tissue of the tonsils in the throat and appendix does serve a useful purpose in early childhood, for such tissue seems to be concerned in fighting off or limiting infections. But when the structures become diseased they are disabled and far from being useful, become a menace to health and life.

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Monday, April 4, 1898

Edward Maurer returned from a business trip to Oconto Falls.

Amos Adair, who was taking a course of dentistry at Chicago, was home on his vacation.

Jacob Roeder and Chris Roemer visited Oshkosh on business connected with the state convention of Catholic Benevolent societies.

Mrs. E. C. Schmidt was surprised the previous evening by a group of friends in honor of her birthday anniversary.

R. T. Gilmore had applicants from three parties who wanted to rent houses worth about $15 a month when the war was unable to supply.

In the absence of the Rev. W. F. Fitzmaurice the day previous, Dr. John Paville and D. B. Bailey addressed the semi-monthly conference at Temple of Honor hall.

St. Mary new church at Kaukauna was to be dedicated April 24.

E. Spencer was progressing favorably with the new book of the old pioneers of the county and had solicited enough subscribers to warrant its being printed.

Mrs. M. Bedessem disposed of her furniture stock and business of Frank Bierman, who was to sell the stock and terminate the business.

Librarian Agnes L. Dwight reported that the circulation of books of the public library during the month of March amounted to 3,953 books of which 1,126 were drawn by children.

TEN YEARS AGO

Monday, March 31, 1913

Harry A. Schlitz was in Chicago on business.

Mr. and Mrs. William Van Norwick returned home from a week's visit to French Lick, Ind.

Mrs. E. A. Pride returned to her home at Tomahawk after a several days' visit with Mrs. C. B. Pride.

Miss Ruth Sayles, who has been visiting at the home of Prof. and Mrs. C. W. Treas, Brookway, returned to Menomonee to resume her studies at Stout training school.

Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Schlafer were at St. Petersburg, Fla., where they expected to remain for several days. In a letter to relatives they said the temperature was 82 degrees above zero.

J. Pierpont Morgan, New York financier, died of acute indigestion in Rome.

Walter H. Page was to be ambassador to Great Britain. He was editor of the World's Work and one of the first men to suggest Gov. Wilson for president.

Catching Eagles Religious Rite

(Frank H. Huston, in Adventure)

From the dawn or antiquity, fur and feathers have played an important part in the vestiture and adornment of the human species, but it remained for the American Indian to invest them with mystic and sacred properties.

With one exception, eagle feathers have been looked upon by all tribes from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the Inuit to the Patagonians, as the most desirable and of greatest magic potency. The exception is the plains or Buffalo Indians and adjacent tribes, who considered the plumes of the road-runner, the wakan, or medicine bird, as the most powerful and sacred.

In procuring plumes for the feathered head-dresses, medicine lances, pipes, and other purposes, a certain ritual was necessary and was always rigidly followed. No blood could be shed in their acquisition; killing at unscrupulous times, or not in the prescribed manner being considered an act of sacrilege, and rendering the feathers valueless for any purpose.

The tail and wing feathers were mostly used, having a greater significance, as well as being larger and more adaptable for general purposes than the lesser plumage. Fixing in 1873 at the instance of my ha-ri (partner) or Indian chum, gone through the required forms and procured enough to make me a wakuna or warbonnet, even after the lapse of years the method and difficulties have remained vividly in my memory.

My first step was a sweat-bath to purify me for the ensuing ceremonial, though generally this part was omitted. As a rule the warrior, going to a hill in a locality where eagles were plentiful, dug there a pit large enough to conceal himself, roofing it over with small limbs, grass and dirt, but leaving an orifice a foot or two in diameter at the top in the center.

The following night he remained, accompanied by Gaa, and the medicine man to repeat the words and instruct me, a greenhorn as it were—singing the "eagle songs" and in the morning, fasting and without having drunk, he proceeded to his blind and concealed himself therein, with a large hunk of raw meat, or tallow on the top fastened by a rope held by himself. Stunned by the smell, a grass-stuffed coyote or dog pup would be placed near by. Should animals or small birds appear they were quickly driven away.

An eagle, alighting within reach, was seized by the legs, drawn into the pit and strangled, or its neck broken, care being taken that no drop of the bird's blood be shed.

num she was obliged to spend much of her time in traveling from place to place on the wretched railroads of the period. So, to reduce the discomforts of the trip, she had seats of an ordinary car removed and the vehicle furnished with chairs, tables and other pieces of furniture which would be appropriate to a parlor. She jocosely called this her "parlor car," and it was undoubtedly from this that we get the name on our Pullman chair cars.

Jenny Lind Had First Parlor Car

We scan the records of the patent office in vain to find the name of Jenny Lind as inventor, says a writer in the Scientific American. Yet she was responsible in a large degree for the "parlor car." When she was brought to this country by P. T. Bar-

Cultured Pearls Hard To Detect

(C. S. Cox, in The Chemical News.)

The pearl, perhaps of all jewels, offers the most difficulty in the detection between the artificial and natural product. The Japanese artificially cultured pearl is grown exclusively in Japan.

The size of the internal nucleus with respect to the size of the whole pearl varies, and often it forms by far the greater part of the pearl. Such a gem is by no means the equal of the real natural product and should not command the same price.

But the jeweler has been at a loss to tell the difference between the two types of pearls. He could distinguish between natural pearls from different countries, Japan, Australia, Ceylon, etc., by little variations in the color and sheen, but it has not been possible for him to distinguish between the natural and cultured pearl without destroying the gem by cutting it in half. Such a method of testing is very wasteful, to say the least.

However, recent developments have shown that it is possible to test pearl in a simple, easy and effective manner, avoiding any destruction or even slightest impairment of the quality of the pearl. For this purpose, the common mercury vapor arc light, the ultra-violet light, which is used for therapeutic purposes, is employed. The difference between the two types of pearls is manifested so clearly under this light that even the layman, having no experience at all with pearls, can tell the difference. The Japanese pearl shows a distinct translucent opalescence under the light while the natural pearl, though opalescent, is opaque under the same conditions.

The Question Box

(Any reader can get the answer to any question by writing The Appleton Post-Crescent Information Bureau, Frederick J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C. This offer applies strictly to information. The Bureau cannot give advice on legal, medical and financial matters. It does not attempt to settle domestic troubles, nor to undertake exhaustive research on any subject. Write your question plainly and briefly. Give your name and address and enclose two cents in stamps for return postage. All replies are sent direct to the inquirer.)

Q. Can grass be made to grow on any kind of soil? A. R. W.

A. Any unproductive soil can be made so that it will grow a satisfactory crop of some desirable grass or grasses. Often the surface soil of a lawn consists of subsoil excavated from the cellar. It then becomes necessary to provide at least a part of the vegetable matter which would usually be present in top soil.

Q. How long is the Dardanelles? D. D. K.

A. The Dardanelles is a narrow channel whose length is 42.3 miles; breadth from 1 to 5 miles.

Q. Why do bass or trout differ in weight at the same age? F. A. G.

A. The Bureau of Fisheries says that such fish vary in weight according to the food supply.

Q. How does the new republic of Germany compare in size with Texas? A. C.

A. The area of the present republic of Germany is estimated at 185,859 square miles. Texas comprises 265,896 square miles. Texas is larger than any other state in the Union. California is nearest in size, having an area of 158,297 square miles.

Q. Can a capon be trained to hatch chicks? M. T. C.

A. The Department of Agriculture says that a capon can be trained to sit on eggs and mother the chicks after they are hatched.

Q. Is Alaska an Arctic possession? A.

A. It is often referred to as such but in reality three-quarters of its area is within the North Temperate Zone.

Q. What is the purpose of the word Ho? G. N. E.

A. It is the formal exclamation used by a commander in battle or by an umpire in a tournament to order a cessation of hostilities.

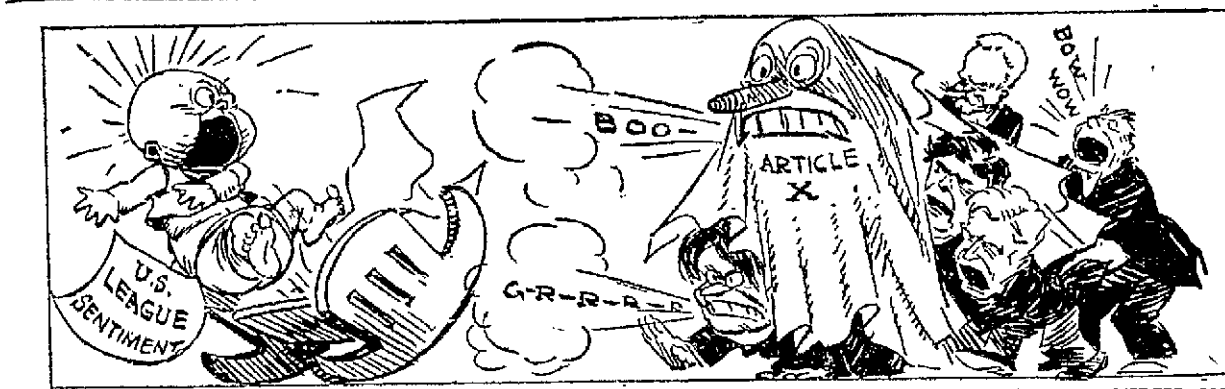

Q. How large do icebergs get? F. M. McL.

A. There are no complete statistics available concerning their size. Some have been known to be from 200 to 300 feet above sea level. This would be approximately one-seventh of the entire height. In the Kennedy Channel, Greeley followed an iceberg which was estimated to be 15 miles long, over 100 feet thick, and of unknown breadth. The iceberg which destroyed the Titanic was 100 feet above water and almost a mile long.

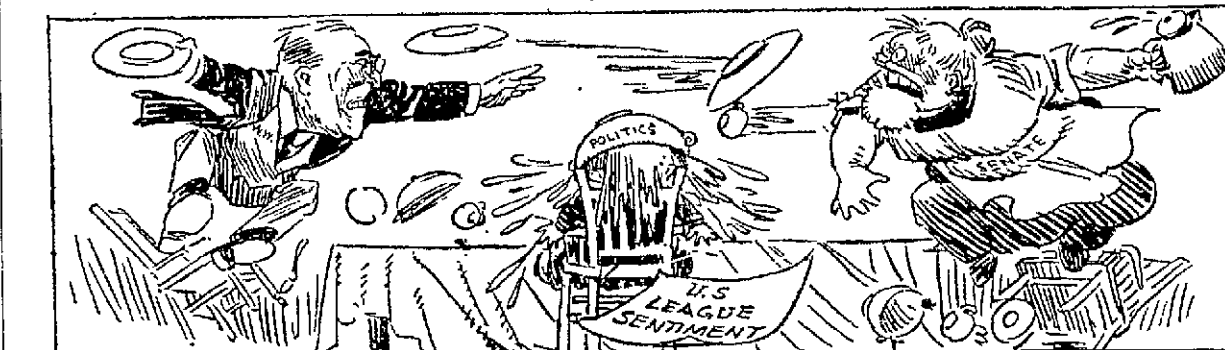

Q. Is Great Britain a part of the continent of Europe? J. A. H.

A. Great Britain is actually a part of the continent of Europe. At an earlier geological period the British Isles formed a continuous part of the continental shelf. The North Sea and the English Channel are merely the results of slight depressions which were filled with water causing the separation.

Q. What is the railroad fare in Iowa? L. W. K.

A. The fare is the same all over the United States. It is 3.6 cents a mile.

Q. What members make up an Embassy staff? T. S. Z.

A. In the case of Embassies such as that of the Court of St. James, the staff includes the Counsellor, First and Second Secretary, and in this instance a Third Secretary, and Assistant Commercial Attache; Military Attache and Assistant Military Attache; Naval Attache and Assistant Naval Attache.

Q. Why is some hair curly and some straight? N. O.

A. The contour of the hair is circular, oval, or flattened. Whether the hair is curly or straight is largely dependent upon its shape; the more oval or flattened it is the more it will curl.

Q. What significance has the word Ho? G. N. E.

A. It is the formal exclamation used by a commander in battle or by an umpire in a tournament to order a cessation of hostilities.

Q. How large do icebergs get? F. M. McL.

Need People's Castoff Silks For Costumes

What kind of a fairy princess can you have without shimmering silk robes and where can you get shimmering silk robes if you have no silk and no money with which to buy? That is the question which is puzzling the Children's Stock company of Appleton Women's club because the plays which its members are presenting for matinee performances require many costumes which should be made of silk.

The actresses have worked out an idea for obtaining the necessary silk if people will cooperate. The girls can use any kind of silk which people are through using and can dye them the right colors. Through personal solicitation the girls have secured some materials, but they need more. Anyone who finds that she has old silk dresses, silk underwear, blouses, silk drapery or other things like that, will find they will be appreciated by the girls.

Important rehearsals of all the members of the stock company have been called for Tuesday evening.

READINGS AND MUSIC ARE GIVEN AT COZEY

Miss Eabette Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Marshall, and a student of the school of speech at Northwestern university, gave several readings at the program of the Appleton Women's club cozeys on Sunday afternoon. Miss Marshall reads in a delightful manner and her program was well received by the 25 girls who were present.

Easter music was furnished for the program by Mrs. H. W. Meyer, Jr. Several numbers were sung by Miss Meyer's three daughters and their cousin, William Meyer. Their program was also received with enthusiasm by the girls.

ST. JOSEPH SOCIETY NAMES FIVE DELEGATES

Joseph Mayer, Maurice Heinemann, A. J. F. Gruber, Fred Stosfel and Charles A. Feuerstein were appointed delegates to the state convention at Milwaukee at the meeting of St. Joseph Benevolent society at St. Joseph hall Sunday afternoon. The Rev. Camillus Becker gave a talk on the duties of citizenship.

F. R. A. TO INITIATE 15 CANDIDATES TUESDAY

Fifteen candidates will be initiated into the Fraternal Reserve association at its meeting in South Masonic hall at 7:30 Tuesday evening. 1,400 Seats Sold For Choir Event Tonight

More than 1,400 seats had been sold up to noon for the concert by St. Olaf Lutheran choir at 8:20 Monday night at Lawrence Memorial chapel. It is expected that number will be swelled by persons coming from the country whose arrival is dependent on the weather.

The singers, 62 in number, were at Sheboygan Sunday and were expected here during the afternoon Monday. They have been making a profound impression in all the Wisconsin cities where they have appeared during the last few days.

Lutheran churches of Appleton arranged this recital jointly with William H. Zuchke as manager.

ROTARIANS TO VOTE ON NEW CLUB BYLAWS

The educational committee of the Rotary club will have in charge of the program after the luncheon at Conway hotel on Tuesday. The bylaws which were recommended by the International club at Los Angeles will be read and then voted upon by the club members. It is the International aim to have all the clubs have a universal constitution and bylaws. The committee will answer any questions the members may have concerning the functions, principles and ideals of International Rotary.

VOTERS TO DECIDE ON WATERWORKS ISSUE TOMORROW

Little Chute Expected To Give Approval To Proposed Bond Issue

Special To Post-Crescent
Little Chute—There will be more interest in the election here Tuesday, perhaps, than in any previous one where local issues were involved.

The village board has heeded the frequent appeals of the business houses and home owners for a municipal waterworks system as a means of convenience, sanitation and fire protection, and has submitted the question to the voters for sanction through a bond issue proposal.

The board asks permission to issue bonds to the amount of $120,000 which will take care of the cost of drilling artesian wells, erecting a pumping station and installing all the mains the village over will need. However, the first outlay will be only for $50,000 and the remainder of the bond issue may not be used for years. Several mass meetings have been held in which speakers pointed out the benefits the village will derive from the waterworks system.

It is believed that most of the taxpayers are in favor of this improvement, because the bond issue plan will spread the payment over a number of years and will not cause a noticeable increase in taxes.

The village also will vote for new officers for the coming term. Anton Janson, incumbent president, seeks reelection and is opposed by Anton A. Hietpes.

MRS. A. H. HOOPS DIES SUDDENLY

End Comes To Black Creek Woman While Lying In Bed After Awakening

Black Creek—Mrs. Adolph H. Hoops, 54, whose husband is engaged in the flour and feed business here, died suddenly about 7 o'clock Saturday morning. She awoke, uttered a few words to her husband as she lay in bed, gasped and was gone.

The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at St. John church with the Rev. Paul Becken in charge. Burial will be made in St. John cemetery.

Mrs. Hoops was born at Centerville Manitowish, Feb. 3, 1869 and was married to Mr. Hoops at that place Oct. 30, 1894. This couple moved to Seymour in 1901 and took up residence at Black Creek in 1920.

The decedent is survived by her widower; two daughters, Mrs. Victor Tesch, Two Rivers; Mrs. Irvin Barth, Menominee, Mich.; three grandchildren; four brothers and two sisters.

31 PERSONS JOIN METHODIST CHURCH

Confirmation Class Includes 21 And 10 Adults Are Admitted

Kaukauna—Thirty-one persons were received into membership of Brokaw Methodist church during the regular 1923 services Sunday morning. A class of 21 young people was received by confirmation while ten adults were admitted by confession of faith and by letter.

The confirmation class consisted of William Ashe, Andrew Ashe, Dorothy Tate, Vaudie St. Mitchell, Margaret Wieruch, Victor Wieruch, Mildred Smith, Caroline Smith, Laura Tabb, Laura Knickerbocker, Doris Knickerbocker, Irene Spicer, Gladys Spicer, Hobbs Whitman, Winston Schussman, Rachael Schussman, Leo Schussman, Edna Thyrion, Wynona Kelly, Annie Wuyts, Viola Mitchell. The adults who joined the church are Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Duett Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Kahoe, William Wozel, Stanley Buhm, Frank Mitchell and Mrs. Mark Gorrow.

The first Easter pageant and cantata given in the church Sunday evening by the choir was very well attended and was well produced. All other services in the church also were well attended.

NEED HUGE CAST FOR LEGION'S COMEDY

Kaukauna—The first meeting of candidates for parts in the American Legion show "All Aboard" to be shown at the auditorium next Wednesday and Thursday, April 11 and 12, was held Saturday evening in Elk hall. John Simmons, director for the John B. Rogers Producing Co., was present and started action at once by selecting the various choruses from between seventy-five and one hundred young men and women present. Persons who are to take principal parts in the musical comedy have already been chosen by the local talent committee. In spite of the large number present there was a lack of material for choruses. Mr. Simmons said. The show probably will require more actors than any other home talent play ever produced in the city. Rehearsals will be held almost daily from now on. High school students will practice after school while others will hold their rehearsals in the evening at the auditorium.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH SINGS EASTER CANTATA

Kaukauna—A very successful cantata was sung Sunday evening in First Congregational church by the augmented choir of that church. It was an Easter song service in two parts, the first part portraying the prophecies of Christ's death and the cross and the second part dealing with the resurrection. The church was well filled. An appropriate reading was given during the service by Miss Ruth Eabiller.

Plans were made to sing the cantata at Riverview Sanatorium next Sunday afternoon. Members of the choir will meet at 2 o'clock at the interurban station and will take the 2:15 car.

LITTLE CHUTE H. S. CLOSED FOR WEEK

Special To Post-Crescent
Little Chute—The following teachers of the high school spent their Easter vacation at their respective homes. Prof. Allen Bushy at his home in Milwaukee; Miss Jean Bonnier at Appleton; Miss Margaret Seemol at Milwaukee; Miss Vellan Hall at Appleton. The local high school is closed for one week and will reopen Monday, April 5. St. John parochial school will be closed until Wednesday, April 4.

A dancing party will be held at Wauky hall Tuesday evening April 3. Electric City orchestra has been engaged to furnish music.

John Devine is seriously ill with pneumonia.

Edward Gerrits, who is attending Marquette college at Milwaukee, is spending his Easter vacation at his home here.

Mrs. Joseph Henrich of Kaukauna visited for a few days this week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Van Der Loop.

Miss Leda Verheggen of Delavan is visiting at her home here.

Easter Sunday holy masses were read at St. John church at 8:30, 9:30 and 10:30. Members of Van Der Broek court 450, Catholic Order of Foresters and the senior Holy Name society received Holy Communion in a body at the 8 o'clock mass.

Misses Bernice Glendemanns and Elva Van Den Berg were guests of friends in Appleton Friday.

The condition of Mrs. Martin Van Dyke, who has been seriously ill, is reported as greatly improved.

DEALERS REPORT SLUMP IN SALES

Kaukauna—Demand for phonograph records last week was not very brisk and actual sales by the various dealers in the city was not confined to two or three popular numbers. Hardly a record was listed as a best seller for the week in more than one store. Easter music was included in what demand there was for music. "Kentucky Babe," sung by a male quartet, also is among the most popular records. Following are last week's best sellers:

Kaukauna Drug Co., Victor—You Know You Belong to Somebody Else. Filling Aunt Alva's Blues, Kentucky Babe, Wonderful One, O Sole Mio.

Mills Music Shop, Columbia—Aggravatin' Papa, Keep Off My Shoes, Old Favorites, The Levitts in Your Eyes, The Clinging Vine, Sweet One, Sheet Music—Nothing But, Save the Last Waltz for Me, Aggravatin' Papa Mississippi Shore, Little Rover, You've Gotta See Mama Every Night, Furgo's—Acelian—Saw Mill River Road, Peggy Dear, I'm Just a Little Blue, Aggravatin' Papa, Crinoline days, Apple Sauce.

Brauer's Rexall Store, Victor—Kentucky Babe, Fate, Down in Maryland, Aggravatin' Papa, Grandma and Grandpa.

Heegeman's, sheet music—Lost a Wonderful Girl, Some Day, I'll Cry Over Someone, Rocky Mountain Moon, One Night in June, I'm Through Shedding Tears.

C. E. Meeting

Kaukauna—The monthly meeting of the Senior Christian Endeavor society of Reformed church will be held at 7:30 Monday evening in the church basement. First reports regarding the district convention to be held here next fall will be made. Routine business will be disposed of. A social meeting will follow the business session.

NEW LONDON HAS SUNRISE SERVICES

All Churches Provide Special Programs in Observance Of Easter

Special To Post-Crescent
New London—Milton J. Hacker of Northwest seminary, Minneapolis, preached the Easter sermon at Holy Trinity English Lutheran church on Sunday.

Special services also were held in some of the other churches. The Christian Endeavor society of the Congregational church held a sunrise devotional service at 7 o'clock. At the regular morning worship the Rev. William H. Ziegler, pastor, preached on the theme, "Vain Faith." The choir sang Bartlett's anthem, "Wings of Living Light." A program was presented by the Sunday school at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

A sunrise service also was held at the Methodist church. At the morning service following, the pastor, the Rev. C. E. Olsen, preached on "The Risen Christ." His evening topic was, "Warm Hearts."

Special Easter features also were included in the services at Immanuel Lutheran church, the Most Precious Blood church, and at St. John Episcopal church.

COMMUNITY AID SOCIETY ELECTS

Mrs. Tackmann Is Made Vice President—All Others Re-elected

Special To Post-Crescent
Nichols—The Community Aid society held its annual meeting at the home of Mrs. A. L. Nichols on Wednesday. All officers were re-elected except the vice president, Mrs. Louis Tackmann was elected for this position taking the place of Mrs. William Shauger. The officers re-elected were Mrs. Al Vande Walle, president; Mrs. Jacob Hahn, secretary; Mrs. Oscar Wilson, treasurer. The ladies of the society are sewing for a spring sale.

About fifty people surprised O. E. Daily at Fraser auditorium Wednesday evening in honor of his birthday anniversary. Games and dancing furnished entertainment.

Miss Mildred Tackmann spent the weekend at Appleton.

Rud Steffy, who has been home from Deaconess hospital, Green Bay, after having had an operation, is again back at the hospital since Monday.

Another family has moved to Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. August Falk of Lehigh.

Mrs. Louis Tackmann spent several days last week with her daughter, Mrs. Ray Mansfield at Appleton.

Miss Mita Gibson spent a few days last week at Green Bay.

Miss Margaret Leonard of Appleton has accepted a position at Nichols Mfg. Company as stenographer.

FOR THE FARMER

BADGER FARMERS TO GET U. S. LOANS AT ST. PAUL BANK

Loan Source Created By Lendroot Bill Expected To Be Used Liberally

BY BASCON N. TIMMONS
Washington—With the twelve intermediate credit banks created by the Lendroot bill already chartered, it is expected that farmers soon will begin to make loans. The intermediate banks do not make loans direct, but provide for rediscounting of paper so that banks may make the loans.

Wisconsin farmers will be served by the St. Paul land bank.

If Wisconsin farmers make as much use of the intermediate credit banks as they have of the land bank the St. Paul bank will do a big volume of business in the Badger state.

Figures of the federal farm loan board revealed that 4,655 Wisconsin borrowers have obtained $12,651,300 from the St. Paul bank. To obtain this they have mortgaged 291,355 acres of land. The value of the land and buildings mortgaged is $26,490,267.

The statistics show that of the money loaned by the St. Paul bank in Wisconsin $977,050 was used for the purchase of the land which was mortgaged; $68,630 was used for the purchase of other land; $1,055,164 was used for building and improvement; $86,490 was used for implements and equipment; $551,767 for stock; $100,445 to purchase livestock; $7,018,081 to pay off private mortgages and $1,157,573 to pay other debts. Thus it will be seen that the largest amount, 63 per cent, was used to fund private mortgages into long-time government mortgages.

The land in Wisconsin held under federal farm loans has an average value of $61.42 an acre. The average loan to the individual farmer was $2,312.

TOWNSHIPS ARE OBLIGED BY LAW TO OPEN HIGHWAYS

Where County Does Not Act, Local Unit Must, State Official-Rules

That there is nothing in the law making it compulsory for the county to keep open state highways in the winter, but that the towns, cities and villages, or local units of government are so obligated, is the statement made by J. T. Donaghey, maintenance engineer of the state highway commission, to a resident on the Mackville road, or highway 47.

Much fault has been found with the condition of this road during the last two months. County snowplows opened the road after some storms and when no further work was done by the county, the road was left practically impassable for vehicle traffic. Because of a considerable amount of arguing as to who is responsible for the maintenance of the road, Frank O. Letts, rural engineer on route 4, wrote to the attorney general for an opinion. The letter was referred to the highway commission. The following reply was made:

"The fact that trunk highway 15 is a state trunk highway and maintained by the county and paid for out of the maintenance funds allotted by the state places no obligation on the county or the state insofar as snow removal is concerned. Section 1317, subsection 6, provides that it shall be the duty of a town, city or village in which the road lies to keep the road open for traffic during the winter months. It further provides that no part of the maintenance funds allotted to the county for trunk highway maintenance can be used for snow removal."

"It does provide, however, that the county board may take over any portion of the state and trunk highway system and keep it open for travel during the winter months, but there is nothing in the law that makes it compulsory for the county to do so. The law is compulsory insofar as the town, city or village is concerned and the local unit of government is obligated to keep all roads lying within its limits free and open for traffic. Therefore, you must look for relief from the town, city or village board."

MANILA PRACTICES ECONOMY

Manila P. I.—For the first time in many years the city of Manila started the new year with a surplus of $168,800 realized by a process of strict economy. During several years past there either has been a deficit or an overdraft.

The expenditures for 1922 amounted to $2,550,000, which was $200,000 less than in the previous year.

SCHOOLS WILL BE MAJOR ISSUE IN C. OF C. PROGRAM

Bridges, Garbage Disposal And Community Promotion Also Mentioned

That the junior high schools will be the paramount issue in the major program of work of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce is indicated by the number of cards of those who attended the recent group meetings which gave that problem first place. Although the answers from the mail questionnaires are not yet in, it is anticipated that these will follow the general trend.

Other issues which have been signified by members, in order of their importance from the number of cards are: Industrial development, garbage disposal, the completion of the bridges, trade promotion, the development of community advertising, the community building, union depot, street markers and the stock pavilion. The number of cards for each of these projects will not be given out until all the questionnaires are turned in.

Several people indicated their interest in the public golf links, further cooperation with the farmer, a municipal rest room, more interest in the tourist, more cooperation with the city council, the development of the city parks and playgrounds, more good roads and better housing conditions. These will be included for the time being in the minor program and will be given consideration as they become important in the community life.

C. E. Yount will complete his outline of the program of work as soon as all the information has been turned in. It is Mr. Yount's opinion that without a doubt the school issue is paramount in the minds of the majority of Appleton people.

VICKS VAPORUB
Over 17 Million Jars Used Yearly

COMMONSENSE HOME TREATMENT FOR HEAD AND CHEST COLDS

Get from your druggist a twenty-five cent jar of Mucosolvent Salve, the ingredients of which are used by physicians constantly. Melt a little in a spoon and inhale the fumes; this will clear the head instantly and the vapors will soothe and heal the inflamed membranes of the upper respiratory tract.

If cold is in chest and deep seated, go to bed and stay there. Take a good laxative. Rub Mucosolvent thickly on chest and cover with warm flannel. Arrange bed clothes so that patient will breathe the vapors that arise. Apply the salve up each nostril and breathe deeply.

Tomorrow morning you will be like a new person. If not, call doctor, because it is possible for a cold that can't be broken with this treatment to turn into pneumonia in an hour.

SHOOT 705 FOR BEST MARK OF DAY AT A. B. C. TOURNNEY

St. Louis Pair Rolls 1,270—Leaders Are Nearly Tumbled

Milwaukee.—Though none of the leaders in the different events of the American Bowling Congress tournament was displaced Sunday, some came perilously close to taking a tumble, scoring in the singles and doubles events being unusually high. In addition, a new tournament record for high single game team score in the doubles was established when H. Ohmsberg and J. Gauer of Chicago collected 503 pins in their final game. Gauer contributed 263 pins and Ohmsberg added 235. The former mark was held by Sievert and Fritsch, Milwaukee, with 502.

A. Slaven, Akron, Ohio, made the best mark in the singles when he totalled 705 on games of 210, 236 and 259. A split in his first game kept him from going into the lead.

ROLL 1,270

The best total of the day in the doubles was a 1,270 count hung up by E. Cohen and F. Cassier of St. Louis. Cohen was high man of the team, scoring 684 while his partner came through with 586.

Play in the team event was featureless, mediocre scoring predominating. The Kerscher Elevator Company quintet, Toledo, garnered the highest number of pins, having games of 908, 900 and 1,005 for a total of 2,813.

LOSERS TITLE

W. Lundgren, Chicago, winner of the singles event last year, lost his title late Sunday when he rolled games of 195, 223 and 225 for a total of 643, falling 81 pins below the score of C. Baumgartner of Cincinnati, the present leader. Lundgren established a world's record for A. B. C. competition in the individual event last year when he totalled 729.

Ruel Slated To Catch Slants Of Walt Johnson

By Associated Press
Tampa, Fla.—It has been definitely decided who will catch Walt Johnson the coming season. When Walter is selected to pitch his first game the announcer will yell:

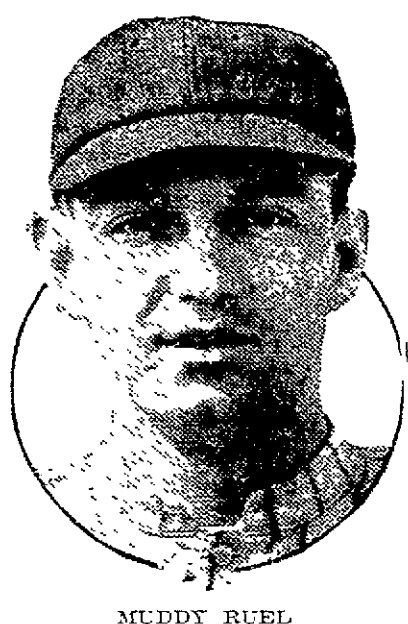

For Washington, Johnson will pitch and Ruel will catch.

Manager Bush has selected Muddy Ruel as Johnson's partner. Thus Ruel will become the fourth catcher to be selected to pitch with the great Johnson.

The original battery was Johnson and Street, then came Johnson and Ainsmith, followed by Johnson and Funch. The very latest is Johnson and Ruel.

Ruel dotes on speed. When with New York he handled the first fast ball pitchers of the Yankees. Ruel will also be paired with Alan Russell, the spitballer.

Eddie Gharitty never liked to catch Johnson, and incidentally has never done much receiving for spitballers, so it is certain Ruel will be behind the bat when either Johnson or Russell works.

Tries To Make Southpaw Out Of Right Hander, Fails

Clearwater, Fla.—Is it possible to shift a player's batting style after he becomes a big leaguer and have it work out successfully?

Manager Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn Nationals is convinced that it can be done.

When Bernie Neis came to the Dodgers in 1920 he was a right handed hitter and seemed to have much promise. However, he failed to hit up to the desired standard.

Neis early showed that he could cover plenty ground and excelled as a fielder. It was believed that if he shifted from the right to the left side of the plate he might be able to take advantage of his great speed in getting down to first base.

After much preliminary practice he was converted into a left-handed batsman, though as a rule he shifted back to the right side of the plate when batting against southpaws.

Neis met with indifferent success after changing his batting style. Last season he batted only .229, which is hardly enough for an outfielder slated to take the position held down by I. Myers, who hit nearly 100 points better.

Manager Robinson is convinced that Neis is not cut out to be a left-handed hitter. He has instructed him to hit only from the right side of the plate.

This is pleasing to Neis, who never was very strong for the left-handed idea. He says he will jump his average at least 30 points this year if allowed to do all his batting right-handed.

The Tie Game

City league bowlers who took sides in the argument in the way the tie game between the Elks Imperials and the Hoffman Construction Co. was decided.

Langtry's opinion was requested by Oscar Kunitz, a member of the Imperials. The letter was written before John Wissman league treasurer dined out the cash on Saturday.

Here's what "Abe" says:

Mr. Oscar Kunitz,

"Appleton, Wis.

"Dear Sir:

"Your communication of the 29th at hand regarding the tie game in your league at Appleton, and the rules of the congress provide that the tie game must immediately be bowled off, and that one entire frame must be bowled by each contestant, and then if the game still remains a tie, an additional frame must be bowled, and so on, until one side is a winning team shown in even frames.

"There is no rule that says one ball must be bowled in any frame, and this would not be complying with the rules of the American Bowling Congress or organized bowling, or any organization in the country. However, in view of the fact that the captain of the team you bowled against agreed to allow you to accept total pins to decide the championship, this is evened out, and the game is a draw.

"The pins to be taken and accepted same for several weeks when your standings were published. Consequently, as a matter of honor I believe that the captains of the entire league should uphold the agreement made between these two teams.

"Of course, it is not a matter for organized bowling to settle, as it is strictly a matter of league policy and this opinion of mine is not official, but merely a general opinion that would follow in case the captains should take a disinterested and honorable view of the situation.

"Yours very truly,

"A. L. Langtry."

STRIKE-OUT WONDER

Bradenton, Fla.—The experts in discussing my club are overlooking one of the best bats among my recruits. Pitcher Fred Wigington," says Branch Ruckey, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Wigington is a big husky right hander, who pitched for Hastings in the Nebraska State league last year.

With a club that finished third in the first half of the pennant race, with an even 500 mark, and fifth in the second half with a percentage of .377. Wigington managed to win 18 and lose 11, for an average of .621, far in advance of his club's record.

However, the most remarkable feature of Wigington's work was his strike-out record. Working in 254 innings, he struck out 260 men, an average of better than a man an inning, that stands out as the banner feat in the year in that respect in organized ball.

SPORT VIEWS AND NEWS

Say it with cement. That's the slogan of the Centre college stadium boosters. The Praying Colonels have planned a $55,000 athletic field in Danville, Ky., and a campaign for funds is under way. The backers of the drive figure that a sack of cement costs $3.15 and if the friends of the college kick in with "bag" lots, the fund will be over the top in time to start work on the stadium before school is out this summer.

Rube Benton is still the source of trouble in the National league. It is said that six club owners have rallied to the support of President Heydler's stand against the pitcher and that every game that Benton hurfs for the Reds will be protested by the rebels. Wonder what will happen when Benton gets beat?

There is joy in Fond du Lac. Schnitz Schneider has come home to roost again and when the State league season opens, the Lanky Ripon college youngsters will be on the slab for the Harris-Barbeau combination. Barbeau is on the trail of a good backstop to work with the elongated Schneider.

Quite often quality not quantity cuts a big figure in athletics. Look at what "Wee" Amorin did in the Minneapolis state basketball tournament. This team produced in a school with less than fifty male students triumphed through all the big fellows and topped the Gopher scholastic championship. They will compete in the national classic at Chicago next week.

Mike McGuire, the battling Irishman, who scored a decision over Bating Siki in the St. Patrick's day co, is coming to America. Fancy purses have attracted the fighting son of Erin this way. He sails for the U. S. on about May 1. A New Jersey fight promoter has hung up a $100,000 purse for a McGuire-Irish scrap. Some Irishmen are born lucky.

Football practice at Wisconsin got under way on schedule time despite the fact that it was impossible to work outdoors. Ryan got his charges together and put them at work. Although the squad is not very large, there is a raft of good material available even if many of the candidates are lacking in varsity experience.

Fired By Minors, He's Hired By Major League

Orlando, Fla.—The unique record of having been fired by a minor league club and hired by a major league one in the same season belongs to Gustave Sandberg, new catcher for the Reds, who is expected to show well the coming year.

Last year was Sandberg's fifth in the International league. He started out with Toronto last year, but in June a deal was arranged that would have sent him to New Orleans in the Southern league. This was even a step below the International.

George Stallings of the Rochester club refused to waive on him, however, and he was used regularly for that club behind the bat. Pat Moran, Reds' manager, saw Sandy in action and paid a good price for his release.

BALL PLAYERS UNION WANT SEAT WITH CZARS

Chicago.—The National Baseball Players' Association, the union of the baseball world, by letter appealed to the national baseball commission for recognition and right to sit as a representative on that body of governing officials. Although Raymond J. Cannon, Milwaukee Attorney, acting for the player's association directed the letter to the National Baseball commission, that ceased to function when former Federal Judge Landis was appointed commissioner of baseball, it was understood Attorney Cannon had in mind the National Advisory council.

It is composed of Commissioner of the National league and President of the American league.

Emke Is Favorite In Betting Circles; Fight Talk Fills Appleton

Betting Lively In Some Places — Eisch-Robertson Fight Gets Interest

Appleton is talking boxing. Never since the McGee-Gorman fight, a good many moons ago, has there been such rabid discussions of fight as there is at the present over the coming battle on Thursday between Willie Wolpin of this city and William Emke, St. Paul. The merits and demerits of the scrappers is the topic in all gatherings of the local crowd. Money, said to be in the hundreds of dollars are being wagered. In a number of public places, however, bets especially on Emke are posted without takers. These, however, may be gobbled up by Wolpin's followers as soon as he comes back from Chicago where he is training. Wolpin has a million dollars worth of confidence in his own ability and his friends believe in him.

EMKE APPEARS A FAVORITE

Emke to the present reading seems to be the favorite though his followers refuse to give odds. This means that there's much respect for Wolpin's punches. Followers of Emke believe that Emke's more active ring life will be an advantage to the St. Paul scrapper while Wolpin will have his second fight in about eight months will be handicapped by lack of activity.

WOLPIN DOES ROAD WORK

Wolpin has been breaking on the Soo road but he left for Chicago to get into shape as soon as he signed. Whether he will be able to accomplish enough in the ten days remains to be seen.

Both boys will have the advantage of entering the ring at 160 thus avoiding any weakening in attempts to reduce.

Another scrap that money is being waged on is the go between Frank Eisch and Jack Robertson. There is $100 side bet between the boys while a pile of money is exchanging hands among the followers. Robertson is the favorite though he is ten pounds lighter than Eisch.

RADIO PATTEN

AN OPERA COMING

So many requests were received by WGY to repeat the operetta, "The Pirates of Penzance," that the Schenectady station of the General Electric Company will broadcast the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, Friday evening, April 13. The instrumental music will be supplied by the WGY Orchestra. At the late concert on the same evening, a program of old time favorites, always popular with radio audiences, will be broadcast. Another feature of the Friday evening program will be two Pathophone addresses, one by Colonel Frederick Palmer, war correspondent, and the other by General Bruce P. Disque.

Sunday, April 8, WGY will broadcast the morning and evening services of St. George's Episcopal Church, Schenectady, N. Y. At 4 o'clock the WGY Symphony Orchestra will give the second of a series of concert.

A novelty feature is offered for Tuesday evening, April 10 when a vaudeville program will be transmitted.

The WGY Players have an interesting production for Thursday night, April 12. Reizenstein's unusual drama, "On Trial," will be presented.

HOLSTEIN SALE WEDNESDAY TO BE STAGED INDOORS

Auctioning Will Start Early, Giving Buyers Chance To Attend

Plans for the sale to be held by the Outagamie County Holstein Breeders' association at the Outagamie Equity Cooperative Exchange in Appleton on April 4, are about completed.

On account of the earliness in the season and the rigidity of the weather, a platform is being erected in the machinery shed and seats are being placed there to insure the comfort of buyers if the weather is unfavorable.

All animals over six months of age to be seen at the sale have been tested for tuberculosis and the majority are from accredited herds.

J. B. Muck of Fort Atkinson, the auctioneer who officiated at the Holstein sale last year, has been engaged again to cry the sale, and F. Everson, Lake Mills, will act as pedigree man.

As all notes received by the association in the last two sales were immediately turned over to the banks, it was deemed advisable by the committee in charge of this sale to accept no notes without indorsement.

Owing to the unfavorable condition of the roads, and to give people coming from a distance the opportunity to remain until the close of the sale, the committee has decided to start the sale at 10:30 sharp.

ROAD HOGS CURBED BY NARROW LANES

Road hogs and speeders inflicted damage upon the cars of a number of careful drivers over the weekend during the heavy traffic periods on Appleton-Menasha rd.

There are places on the highway where there is but a single automobile track between high snowdrifts piled at each side. When two cars approach these points, it is necessary for either one or the other to stop at a wider turning out place to wait for the other to negotiate the narrow strip.

Some drivers, however, dashed into the narrow lanes without regard for the other person and a collision was invited each time. In one instance a speeding car was forced to climb an icy embankment, and the machine from the other direction was obliged to do the same. The rear ends of both crashed together, however, ruining fenders. A few other minor accidents also occurred.

TRAINS CROWDED WITH EASTER TRAVELERS

Railroad trains were crowded the last few days with persons who came home or went away for the Easter holidays. Among the passengers were a large number of students coming home for the Easter vacation. The poor condition of rural roads was a good feeder for the railroads.

BADING HAS QUAKIEST U. S. DIPLOMATIC JOB

Washington — The quakiest diplomatic job of Uncle Sam is that of Dr. G. A. Bading, minister to Ecuador. Bading, a former Milwaukee mayor, is the only Wisconsin envoy under the Harding administration.

The capital of Ecuador is Quito, high above the equator. There is scarcely an earthquake anywhere that is not felt at Quito and it has quite a few of its own. However, none of them are disastrous and one gets lonesome without his earthquakes, it is said.

NOTICE

Under provision of Zoning Ordinance recently passed by the Common Council, it is necessary that a permit be secured for all future buildings or structures to be constructed in the City of Appleton.

This includes business blocks, factories, warehouses, residences, garages, barns, stables or any building whatsoever.

Application must be made at office of City Engineer before permit is granted.

No charge is made for permits. Blanks necessary for location plats will be furnished together with any other information necessary, by the Engineering Department.

OSCAR F. WEISSGERBER,
City Engineer.

HA! THE TUT-ANKH-AMEN TROT!

'Bob' Is Beau Brummel But Gets Votes Anyway

Washington—Representative Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, prospective Republican leader, would like to know a secret from Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin.

LaFollette can wear tan spats, the best tailored clothes and generally cut the reputation of being the best dressed man in Washington and still get the votes of the horny-handed son of toil. Yet the chief objection to Longworth is that he "dresses too well."

The other day Gus Karger, veteran Washington correspondent and mentor and guide of presidents, chief justices, and congressmen who hail from Ohio, sought to warn Longworth of the feelings of the proletariat, saying: "Nick, you mustn't be so fastidious in your habits in your habitations. To which Nick replied by turning round, lifting his coat tails and showing a patch twice as big as his hand explaining at the same time, "Gus, I've been wearing this suit for more than a week, now."

Another worry which struck Longworth was the whispered attack against him for wearing tan spats. He has been the only congressman to adopt this fad, but under stress of campaign faced the necessity of throwing his spats away, or discarding oxford in the midst of the recent cold spell, and going back to high shoes which he abhors.

The greatest objection to Nick's aristocratic way seems to have come from the farm bloc and to be especially of LaFollette, though LaFollette comes mighty near being the senate beau brummel.

Again Gus Karger came into service and saved Nick's bacon. In this case his tan spats, by informing Longworth that LaFollette had just appeared at the capitol with a new hair marble and a new pair of tan spats, which Nick's bald, shiny head, and rather worn gaiters were of the proletariat most pro.

Stock Fair Was Repetition Of Pre-Auto Days

While the attendance at the monthly fair Saturday was light during the early morning hours, the grounds were well filled by noon with farmers who drove in with their sleighs and horses. Not an automobile was to be seen on the grounds and the scene was a repetition of those of 25 years ago. Outside buyers showed up late in the day and purchased most of the small pigs offered for sale which they crated and shipped by express instead of attempting to use their motortrucks.

WOLVES HAUNT DREARY
PLAINS OF TARTAR LAND

By Associated Press
Kazan—The wolves have come back to the steppes. In the cold winter nights on the wind swept plains of the Tartar republic, the nomadic tribes report, more wolves have been seen this year than for decades past.

They have grown so bold that they howl at the very doors of the dugouts of mud houses that the wandering Tchuvash and Bashkir people inhabit in the winter in place of their summer tents.

In the Tartar republic, the Tchuvash and Bashkir territories, more than 40,000 head of cattle have already been destroyed by the wolves this winter.

This destruction among livestock, already depleted by the famine, is so serious that the government has launched a campaign throughout the province to kill the wolves. Huge hunts are being organized. The population has very few rifles, and little or no ammunition on hand, therefore it is considered probable that soldiers of the Red Army will be used in a wolf drive.

A "Perfect Lady," Only She's A Man

Let Our Girls be Men and Every one a Lady," chants the Haresfoot club of the University of Wisconsin which will present "Kikimi," a musical extravaganza in Appleton theatre Tuesday night.

No woman has ever been a member of the club but the Haresfoot men have been presenting musical plays, with a large number of feminine roles, since 1898.

Now you would never guess that the good looking girl pictured above isn't a regular, honest-to-goodness woman. Look her over fellows! It's dollars to doughnuts if she went roaming down College-ave about half the male population on the street would take a second look.

She's a perfect lady all right, only she isn't. She's Herbert Townsend, a regular he-man, who does most of the things that regular he-men do.

Townsend and the rest of the Haresfoot players will be seen here in "Kikimi" Tuesday night. "Kikimi" was written and produced entirely by University of Wisconsin undergraduates.

The seat seat now is on "Kikimi." The Haresfoot players will be seen in the most important cities of the midwest and Appleton is said to be fortunate in securing them for a performance.

HARDING TO RETURN TO
WASHINGTON IN WEEK

ing fight and controversy. This has been possible in the first two years of his administration but the political bombardment from the opposite camp, has already begun and Mr. Harding is being urged to answer attacks and keep his own viewpoint constantly before the public.

The president's instructions to the tariff commission to broaden its inquiry on the prices of sugar as they may relate to the tariff is a recognition of the necessity of this kind of warfare in politics. There will probably be more of it when the president gets back to his desk in the white house.

The trip across the country to be begun in June will, of course, afford the best method of dealing with attacks against his administration but the sagacious political advice usually offered is to think first and talk about it afterwards.

Before going out to the country the president has the opportunity to do several things without the aid of congress for in him is vested wide discretionary powers. On many public questions congress has not stripped executive of so much power since 1920 as might be imagined and the administration is in a large sense a one man government.

The cabinet secretaries have been given much latitude by Mr. Harding but he is, after all, responsible for practically all of their acts and rarely is an important policy put into effect without his decision.

CHANCE TO RECOVER
The European situation, to be sure, affords Mr. Harding all the time a chance to recover lost ground with that large group in his own party which believes farm prices will be improved and the general prosperity of this country insured by economic and non-political cooperation with Europe. Secretary Hughes has confined himself to the lines of policy

ELECTION TUESDAY TO BE QUIET ONE

No "Fireworks" Evident As Voters Are To Select Aldermen

One would not know that Tuesday is municipal election day, if one had to depend upon the usual pre-campaign noise for observation. The primary election two weeks ago attracted more attention on account of the bridge referendum. But the present campaign has been an unusually quiet one. Voting in the Third ward will be rather sluggish, because there is but one candidate in the running. There is a contest in every other ward, but the campaign has been void of the old time political "fireworks." Telephone have become the medium of some campaigning, much to the regret of subscribers on party lines.

Hold Game Tournney

left down by Mr. Harding and with recognition of the factional feeling inside the Republican party which the League of Nations issue aroused. But ever since Mr. Hughes has been secretary of state and Mr. Harding has been in the white house, congress has been in practically continuous session and no move in foreign affairs could be made, not even the writing of a forceful diplomatic note on international cooperation without running the risk of having that move pilloried by debates in congress before the administration had really had the chance to complete its diplomatic maneuvers.

The president has been repeatedly told that he must help Europe in some practical way and that there are lots of things he can do in an economic direction without committing the United States to any political entanglements abroad. Mr. Harding now has a free hand and one of the first activities on his part after returning to Washington will be to consult with Secretary Hughes and his cabinet on a possible development of the administration's foreign policy to encompass these economic considerations. The Ruhr situation momentarily impedes progress, for even if the president were disposed to go forward and draw closer to Europe, he would not wish to do so until there was some evidence of the willingness of both France and Germany to settle their conflict over reparations.

The president will be in Augusta about a week and then he goes back to Washington to do things that his friends hope will count him in good stead when he goes forth to make his twenty or more speeches in defense of his administration.

DODGE BROTHERS TYPE-A SEDAN

Its dependability is taken for granted—its economy of operation is proverbial.

Comment, as a rule, is directed to the richness of its fittings, and the dignified beauty of its coach work.

This beauty is not a superficial thing. It goes much deeper than mere external adornments.

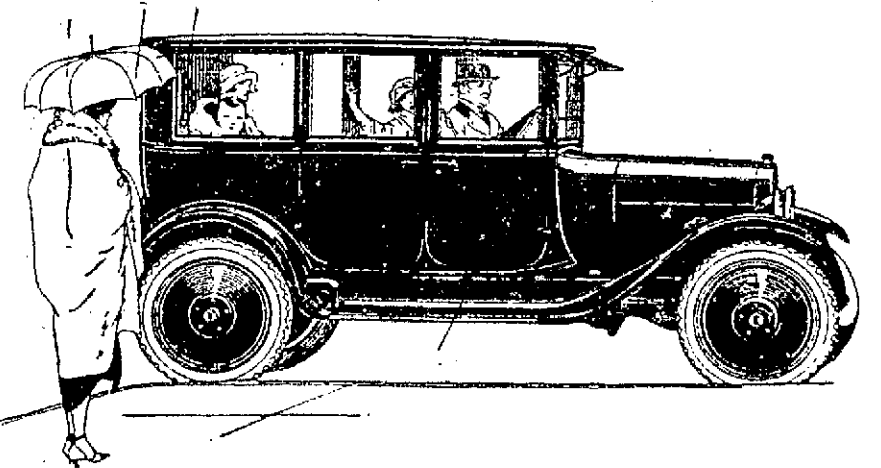

Like all creations of genuine excellence, it emanates from the honest value which Dodge Brothers have built into the car.

You sense it in the depth and comfort of the seats—richly upholstered in genuine mohair velvet. It makes itself known the instant you close the doors—which snap solidly shut, like the doors of a safe. It emanates unmistakably from every line and curve of the sturdy body.

It becomes most evident when you discover that in smart company, where a car of less distinction would appear at its worst, Dodge Brothers Type-A Sedan appears at its best.

JANET CONTINUES

She closed the door, and I advanced toward the bedside, only to step back with a little exclamation. I thought that there must be some mistake. The man who sat up in bed, watching me, seemed at first sight a stranger. His hair, which had been dark, was now of a sandy gray, and he wore a short stubby mustache of the same color. His cheeks had fallen in; his forehead seemed more prominent; there was an unfamiliar scar on the left side of his face.

"Michael!" I exclaimed incredulously. "Capital!" he replied. "You see no resemblance to Mr. James Stanfield?" "Not the slightest," I assured him. "The whole thing is wonderful. But what is the story with you?"

"Nothing," was the impatient rejoinder. "I have had to starve myself to get thin. I took the place and the names of a business acquaintance upon the boat. It was quite a smart piece of work. I am supposed to be suffering from a nervous breakdown. Bosh! I haven't a nerve in my body."

"You left me alone for a long time," I reminded him.

"I was fighting for my life," he answered grimly. "You don't know the inner workings of the game, so I can't explain. I was hemmed in. As soon as I broke away, they were never on to me again. I brought off the coup of my life in New York, but—things went wrong. Janet. You know what that means."

"You killed some one?" I whispered. "I had no intention of doing anything of that sort," he answered. "It was Hartley, the banker, himself. He forced me into a fight at close quarters. We exchanged shots. I was wounded. So was he. He was in miserable health, though, and he never recovered. The shock killed him as much as anything. I got away all right but it means all or nothing for the future."

"If you have enough," I suggested, "why not try the other end of the world?"

"I have thought of everywhere," he answered. "Of Indo-China, the South Sea Islands, New Guinea, the far South American States. They are all hopeless. The eyes follow. There is safety only under the shadow of the arm."

"What about our meeting?" I asked. "I am known."

"It is a problem to be solved," he said slowly. "There is risk in it; yet the thought of parting with you, Janet, is like a clutching hand laid upon my heart."

It was the first word of the sort he had ever spoken to me, and again for some reason I shivered.

"What is your need of me now?" I demanded.

"To get rid of Norman Greyes," he replied.

There was a silence during which I felt that he was studying my face, and although I do not believe that a muscle twitched or that my eyes lost their steady light, still I was thankful for the darkened room.

"I have figured it all out," he went on. "I am safe here, safe except from that one man. Even as I am now, he would recognize me. The moment I move, and there are big things to be done here, I shall feel him on my trail. It is his life or mine."

"Why do you think that I can do this?" I asked.

"Because, although he does not know it, Norman Greyes feels your attraction. He is too strong a man to succumb, but he can never resist dallying with it, because it provides him with something new in life. You suggest to him a sensation which he obtains nowhere else. I know men like a book Janet; and I have seen these things."

"Do you know women, too?" I ventured.

"Sufficiently," he answered. "How do you propose that I should do this?" I asked.

"Norman Greyes," he said, "is one of those men whom it is hard to kill. A fool walks to his death. Norman Greyes wears the aura of a deity. They have tried during the last few weeks. One of the finest marksmen in England missed him with a rifle at a hundred yards. He is a reckless motorist, yet he drove his car with safety when the steering-wheel collapsed. Nevertheless, if he had stayed in Devonshire, we should have had him. They tell me that he is in London."

"He is within a few yards of this spot," I announced, "and I am dining with him tonight."

For a moment his eyes flashed at me like steel caught in the sunlight. "I met him at the corner of the street this morning," I explained.

"I ask no question," was the cold reply. "I shall know if you are ever faithless. . . . A little present for you, Janet."

He brought his hand from under the pillow and handed me an exquisitely chased gold box, a curio of strange shape and with small enamel figures inlaid. I exclaimed with delight. He touched the spring. It was filled with white powder, on the top of which reposed a tiny powder-puff.

"Be careful not to let any of the powder get near your mouth," he enjoined. "A pinch upon the food or in the glass is sufficient. Take it."

I dropped it into the silk bag I was carrying. I was trying to tell myself that I had killed a man before.

"That half-ounce cost me one hundred pounds," he said. "After scour the world for it. You can handle the powder freely. There is no danger until it gets into the system."

"And then?"

"It makes a helpless invalid of the strongest for at least two years."

"Norman Greyes CONTINUES:

I have come to the conclusion that in future I shall do well to avoid Janet Stanfield. As the cold, mechanical assistant of a master of crime, she interested me. I have even devoted a chapter of my forthcoming book to an analysis of her character. I am beginning to realize however, that even the hardest and cruellest woman cannot escape from the tendencies of her sex.

In all the duels I have previously had with her, she had carried herself with cold and decorous assurance. There has never been a moment when I have seen the light of any real feeling in her eyes. Last night, however, a different woman dined with me. She was more beautiful than I had ever imagined her, by reason of a slight flush that came and went in her cheeks. Her eyes seemed to have increased in size and to flash with a softer brilliance.

We sat at a corner table against the wall at Seto's, where the room was as usual filled with beautiful women. There was not one who attracted so much attention as my companion. There was no one who deserved it.

"You think I am looking well?" she asked, in reply to some observation of mine.

"Wonderfully," I replied. "Also, if I may be allowed to comment upon it, changed. You look as though you had found some new interest in life."

She laughed a little bitterly. "Where should I seek it?" she asked. "Perhaps the change is internal," I suggested. "Perhaps your outlook upon life is changing. Perhaps you have made up your mind to put away the false gods."

"I have traveled too far along one road," she answered hardily.

It was at this stage in our conversation that I made up my mind that it was better for me to see this woman no more. Our eyes met, and she suddenly was not hard at all. I seemed to look into her soul, and there were things there which I could not understand. I was thankful that the dancing began just then. It helped us over a curious gulf of silence. Janet danced with little knowledge of the steps, but with a wonderful sense of rhythm. I was ashamed of the pleasure it gave me to realize, as we moved away to the music that this woman of steel had a very soft and human body.

Janet was certainly in a strange and nervous state that evening. We danced for some time without resting. Then she suddenly turned back to the table. I had paused for a moment to speak to some acquaintances. When I rejoined her, she was pale, and the hand which was holding her little gold powder-box was shaking.

"Has anything happened?" I asked her, a little concerned. "Are you not feeling well? Perhaps the dancing?"

"I loved it," she interrupted. "I am quite well."

Yet she sat there, tense and speechless. I made up my mind to finish my coffee and go. I had raised the cup to my lips, even, when she suddenly swung across the table knocking my arm with her elbow. My coffee was spilled, and the table cloth was ruined. Janet began to laugh. For a moment she seemed to have a fit of breathlessness. Then as she watched the cloth being changed, she became herself again. She had the air of one who had met a crisis and conquered it.

"I am sorry for my clumsiness," she said penitently. "Let us dance while they rearrange the table."

This time her feet moved less nimbly to the music. She seemed heavier in my arms.

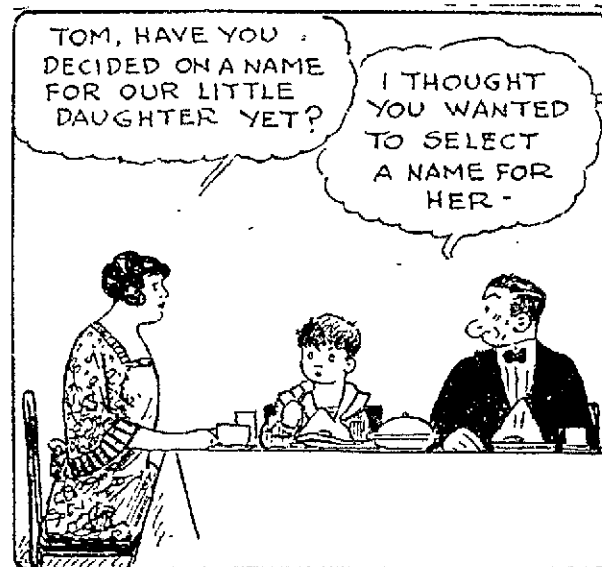

"Who gave you that beautiful gold powder-box?" I inquired, more for the sake of making conversation than from any actual curiosity.

"Satan," she acknowledged. "I have made up my mind, however, to send it back."

"Boxes of Gold," seventh story of this remarkable series, will begin in our next issue.

Clothes For Baby Requires
Care In Making

Every mother knows that the new baby's clothes must be as free from bunchy gathers and bumpy buttons as possible. She is always glad to hear of easily-made garments which will make her little one comfortable and cozy.

There is a flannel petticoat which has a bodice much like a tight-fitting corset cover of mother's. The skirt of the petticoat laps in front with the bodice, so that the garment by being passed under the little body and arranged from the front. The two fronts of the bodice cross, the long end on one side passing through a slit in the other side, the two tying with tapes in the center back. There are no gathers worth mentioning in this petticoat and no buttons anywhere.

Another slip petticoat goes on over the head and ties with tapes on the shoulders, or buttons there, for buttons on the shoulders could not cause the baby discomfort.

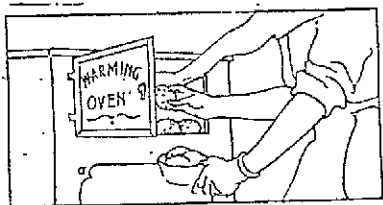

The baby's shirt may be made in much the same way as this last petticoat. While some mothers follow the foreign fashion of keeping soft linen next to the little body, most mothers in this country believe in the wool or flannel vest.

A diaper protection of rubber can be made of a triangle of sheeting attached permanently to a band which ties in front. A button on the front and a buttonhole in the third corner of the diaper does away entirely with the safety pin. The wash diapers can be made on the same pattern and fastened in the same way.

Household
Suggestions

EXTRACT LEMON JUICE

If before extracting the juice from lemons you will place them in the warmth; closet for a few minutes you will be surprised at the extra amount of juice you will get.

CURES FOR INSOMNIA

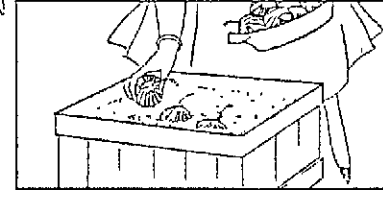

If you are troubled with insomnia try drinking a cup of cocoa or a little clam broth just before retiring. Hot milk also has a tendency to calm the nerves and induce sleep.

FRESH MEAT

Remove fresh meat immediately from the box or paper in which it is sent home by the butcher, or the paper will absorb the juices. Put it on a clean plate.

FRESH APPLES

You can keep apples fresh and sound for any length of time by packing them in sawdust.

FURNITURE POLISH

An efficient furniture polish is made of three parts linseed oil and one part spirits of turpentine.

FOR SILK SEWING

Before you wish to do fine sewing or use silk floss, wash the hands in alum water. It will make them smooth.

FRUIT STAINS

Camphor sometimes removes from linen fruit stains that have successfully resisted any other remedy.

GOOD MANNERS

Without making undue haste, it is good form to leave the theater after the play is over, as soon as it can be done conveniently. Some people show a tendency to block the aisles or linger in the rear of the auditorium, which interferes with others, and therefore is bad manners. It is quite proper to discuss the play in leaving, but it should not be done noisily.

TIRED SKIRTS

The tired skirt is used effectively with the plainest of blouses. It is becoming to tall or short figures as the tiers are so artfully arranged they do not cut the height.

COVERT SUITS

Among the season's tailor-made are many smart models of covert cloth with closely fitting sleeves and plain skirts. They are worn with filled blouses or fancy vests.

NEW COIFFURE STYLES TAKE BOBBED HAIR
HEADS INTO CONSIDERATION

BY MARIAN HALE

Cover your forehead, bury your ears, if you will.

But if the back of your head's beautiful, show it.

This is the latest Paris edict—hence, law to the fashionable world. Mme. Louise Berthelon, the French hairdresser, who confided to me what's coming next in the coiffure line, never did approve of bobbing.

She admits its influence is with us still, however. That is, hair once bobbed, couldn't be un-bobbed in a hurry. So all hairdressing of the moment is planned with growing locks in mind.

TOO GOOD TO LOSE
"It was during bobbed hair's vogue," Mme. Berthelon told me, "that we learned the beauty of the line running from the crown to the back of the head, and now we're not willing to lose it beneath braids, puffs or knots."

The "peeled" effect is desired no longer in Paris, I understand.

"The Parisienne," my mentor explained, "has her hair short in front—really bobbed. Or she adds little puffs to give the fluffy effect of clipped locks. This softened outline is most flattering."

Bangs are seen on all fashionable women's brows, but not such expanses of them as the Lady Elizabeth loved.

NO LONGER WILD
To the lambequin effect, French and American girls prefer the partial fringe, spreading over a limited area and merely relieving the suggestion of extreme intellectual superiority by a vast sweep of forehead. Waves are wild no longer. They undulate gracefully, framing the face in beautiful lines.

The hair nearly always is parted—somewhere. But the part wanders about or runs on the bias.

The knot, usually detachable, is placed to suit the wearer's whim. The knowing woman locates it at the angle most complimentary to her nose. The Grecian knot should accompany the Grecian profile. The rousseau nose calls for a lower or higher bun.

KING TUT'S INFLUENCE
Naturally we can't escape the Egyptian influence.

Metal bands and pendant hardware are extremely popular. Earrings are almost more necessary than ears.

Turbans woven of gold or silver cloth; bandanna kerchiefs, given a clever twist, and Juliet caps of pearls are fashionable ornaments for evening.

And take heart!

If you hair's thin, not of particularly good color, and sort of generally hopeless, there's a smart new contrivance called the "envelop-pour." Lighter than the transformation, it is quite as efficient. You become mistress of your own pate by acquiring one.

and coats alike and there is no indication of a wane in their popularity.

MOIRE POPULAR

Moire is a most popular fabric in Paris, sometimes shot with metal threads that make a pattern.

LACE BRASSIERES

Brassieres of shadow lace are firmer than they seem for they are backed by net, but they are very light weight and are advocated for summer wear.

PAJAMA COSTUMES

Attractive pajama outfits are made of cotton crepe with blouses that slip over the head and have embroidered pockets.

SPORT COATS

Mannish sport coats of white and gray camel's hair are a pleasant change from the more conventional tan model and answer the same purpose.

PRINTED CREPES

Printed crepes are never more effective for the young and slender than when made with simple, loose basques, full skirts and with quaint Priscilla collars of white organdie or crepe. This type of frock has been very popular at winter resorts and will continue throughout the season.

AMBITIOUS COLLARS

A gown of printed silk is equipped with a collar of plain silk which follows the neckline, then goes down one side, is caught in at the waistline and then descends below the hem of the frock, giving the effect of a side panel.

VOILE NIGHT GOWNS

Night gowns of silk voile come in all colors and are as plain or as fancy as one desires. Frequently they are embellished with double hemstitching or ribbon bindings.

TESTED RECIPES

HOLLANDAISE SAUCE
By Bertha E. Shapleigh

The real French method of making a Hollandaise sauce is to make an emulsion of egg yolks, acid and butter, cooking it over water. To this thick sauce, which is quite the finest of all sauces, some American cooks add boiling water, thinning the sauce and making it good for baked or boiled fish where a thinner sauce is more desirable. Because the sauce cannot be kept hot without danger of separation, many cooks add a small amount of thick white sauce.

A good recipe consists of one-half cup butter, two egg yolks, one tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar, one-quarter teaspoon salt and a little cayenne.

Work the butter until creamy, but not soft, and divide it into three portions. Place one portion with egg yolks and acid in a sauce pan. Hold the sauce pan over hot water, and stir constantly until the egg yolks have begun to thicken the butter; add a second portion of butter, and then the remaining piece. When butter is melted and the mixture is as smooth as mayonnaise, remove from the fire. Season and serve at once.

If a separation does take place add a tablespoon of boiling water or cream, and stir vigorously.

Hollandaise may be used with a tenderloin of beef, veal cutlet, fried or broiled fish, artichokes, asparagus and many egg dishes. There are many variations, such as the addition of tarragon, anchovy sauce, cream or tomato puré.

If the mark of a king is his crown, the mark of a gentleman is his hat and how he handles it. The hat has a social language all of its own. There is a suitable hat for every occasion and a suitable style of hat for every head. A man's method of lifting or doffing his hat may be expressive of gentility as his bearing in a ball room.

THE MAN'S HAT

1: A man takes off his hat when riding with a woman in an elevator in a club, hotel, apartment or store; when he stops to speak to a woman on the street; when he must wait for a funeral to pass, when the national "colors" are passing, and when the national anthem is played.

2: A man merely lifts his hat as a conventional gesture to strangers, whenever he must recognize their presence.

3: A man lifts his hat when offering a woman a seat in a car, and again when she thanks him—which she should invariably do.

4: Whenever a man unavoidably intrudes on a woman, as when meeting her in a narrow passage where he must make way, he lifts his hat.

LETTER FROM KARL WHITNEY TO ALICE HAMILTON

ALICE DEAR:
The other day when you called me over to tea with those gentle friends, I suddenly became aware that you had grown up.

You very skillfully turned their shafts of curious criticism of your sister into a kind of boomerang that reflected upon themselves.

Now my dear—I was going to say child, for I have known you ever since you were born and I turned up my nose at your pucker little red face when Leslie insisted that I should look at her new sister.

I repeat now, my dear girl—does that not sound quite young ladyish—when you know that I am coming to you for advice I hope you will understand that in my eyes at least you are mature of mind if not of body.

After this long preamble, I will come to the point.
I am very anxious to give Leslie a pearl necklace for a wedding present and I do not know just how to do it without drawing out some sensational comment about the gift.

Though why as old and as rich a man friend as I should not give her anything he wished and she might accept is a conundrum I cannot answer.

Alice dear, I expect that you, like everyone else, know that ever since I was eight and Leslie four I have intended to marry her. No other girl has had the slightest interest for me. My one thought, my one dream of real living has been of the time when Leslie would be my wife.

When my father died, and I, at twelve years of age, came into more pocket money than I knew there was in the world, my first thought was to buy something for Leslie. Immediately I rushed over to her and asked—"If you could have a piece of jewelry what would you ask for?"

"A pearl necklace," she answered promptly.

"I'll get one for you immediately," I promised proudly, never realizing what a pearl necklace would cost.

But I soon found out that pearl necklaces were much beyond my pocketbook of even a little boy whose allowance at twelve years old was over five thousand a year.

However, not to be daunted, I went to one of my father's friends—one of the oldest jewelers in the country—and asked him to buy me at least one pearl a year until I got all my money and then I would add the remainder of the gems necessary to make a splendid string.

The man was amused to think that a boy of my age should have such an ambition. Of course I did not tell him it was for Leslie. Then and there I arranged to give him one hundred and seventy-five dollars a month out of my five hundred to pay for a beautiful two-thousand dollar pearl.

From then on this man has almost made it his life business to watch this pearl and when I became of age I was able to add more than one a year.

Suffice it to say, I have now a string of sixty perfectly matched pearls on my hands which I have always thought of as belonging to Leslie.

I later told her of her inheritance. That she is not going to marry me does not alter the matter in the least.

But now that you are grown up, you will know what a fuss Mrs. Grundy will make of it. Consequently, I want you to help me think of some way of presenting these pearls to Leslie without causing any furor.

You and I, dear Alice, are the only ones in this momentous secret. Help me out, will you not?
Confidingly,

KARL.

LETTER FROM ALICE HAMILTON TO BETTY STOKLEY

Oh Betty, Betty, I am so sorry you are over there in Europe.

Betty my dear, I have stumbled—literally stumbled—onto the most romantic episode that probably has happened in this practical twentieth century.

I would not confide it to anyone but you, and not even to you if I did not know that you had gone abroad to gather material for your great novel.

This true romance will show you what I always contended when we were at school—that you can find undying love in this country just as well as anywhere else.

Betty, the man I told you was in love with my sister Leslie, has for years been collecting a string of pearls for her and he is going to give it to her regardless of the fact that she is going to marry another man.

He wants me to find some way for him to give her this glorious present without making a sensation. I am writing to you to put your wits to work to help me devise some plan to do this. It ought to be easy for you because you are going to be an author and you must have plenty of such plans in your mind.

Have no time to write any more as I must know what you think about this immediately.
Lovingly,
ALICE.

Adventures Of The Twins

Mary's Garden

The next person the Twins met while hunting for Mother Goose's house was Contrary Mary in her garden.

"Good morning," said Nancy and Nick politely as they came to the gate.

"Good evening," answered Contrary Mary contrarily. "Who are you and where are you going?"

"We're not going anywhere just now," said Nancy. "We'd like to stay here for a little while and talk to you if you don't mind. We're pretty tired for we've been traveling."

Contrary Mary, who had a kind heart in spite of her contrariness, invited them to sit down on some large clockshells, while she went around with her watering pot.

"Where have you been?" she asked at last. "What made you so tired?"

"Oh, we've been everywhere," guess," replied Nick. "To Mary and Jupiter and all along the Milky Way and to a half dozen other stars. Mother Goose lost her broom in the sky somewhere so we came here to find it. Did you see it?"

"No, I didn't," answered Mary. "Would you like to see my garden?"

"Oh, we'd love to," cried Nancy, springing up. "We're all rested now."

"I grow only useful things," went on Contrary Mary. "These are the lady's slippers in this bed. Those are bachelor's buttons over there. That vine on the trellis grows Dutchman's pipes and beyond is Indian paint brush. Here are the cat-tails and some rabbit-foot and foxgloves (though why foxes need gloves I cannot say.)"

"And there are lady's tresses, jewel-weed, monk's hood, pitcher-plant, rattle-bone, skull-cap, sneeze-flower, and there is the twinflower, the sweetest of them all. You shall have a bouquet. It will bring you luck."

FASHION HINTS

BUTTERFLY TRIMMING

A butterfly embroidered in many colors, located a few inches below the bateau neckline is the only trimming on a frock of royal blue satin with elaborate side draperies.

GREEN AND GRAY

Gray lace is draped over white satin and washed with a full, wide girdle of apple-green crepe and makes one of the most charming dinner frocks of the season. A little of the green is repeated in the satin underskirt.

BEADED GIRDLES

Beaded girdles are very popular now, tied directly in front after the fashion of the ancient Egyptians, who are now dominating the fashionable woman's wardrobe.

BEADED LACE

Frocks of figured lace are frequently decorated with woolsen heads following some of the lace patterns. Heads are growing in size and are to be extensively used this spring.

SIDE FASTENINGS

Side fastenings are used on gowns

5-MINUTE
BREAKFASTS

There's now a Quick Quaker Oats. It cooks to perfection in 3 to 5 minutes. No other oats can compare for quick cooking.

Same flavor, same quality as regular Quaker Oats. This brand is always flaked from the finest grains only. But in Quick Quaker the oats are cut before flaking. They are rolled very thin and partly cooked. So the flakes are smaller and thinner—that is all. And those small, thin flakes cook quickly.

Your grocer has both styles—Quick Quaker and regular. Tell him which style you prefer.

Her Health Heart Home

Married—But Happy

By Virginia Lynch Maxwell.

CHARLOTTE waited anxiously while Billy ran through his desk, impatiently casting aside memos and note books in search of something.

"What in the world are you looking for?" she asked, moving toward the door. "I thought you were ready to leave or I shouldn't have slipped into this heavy wrap."

"Can't find my pocket-book," said Billy, in a provoked tone.

As he spoke he continued to rifle the drawers in a furious effort to find the lost purse. Suddenly he remembered. He had left it on the library table. He found it there and shoved it deep into his inner pocket.

Billy hailed a taxi. They had given up the luxury of taxis for some time in an effort to economize. But to-night he had promised Charlotte a perfectly royal time. And he had got two of the best tickets available for the latest musical show in town. With a smug sense of having a comfortable sum tucked in the inner folds of the flat, black wallet, Billy leaned back and surveyed the passing world without.

"They say this show's a wonder," he remarked idly, more to stimulate conversation than because he was speculating. "I know you'll like it."

"I'm sure I will, dear," agreed Charlotte buoyantly. "I've heard so many of the women talking about it. It's about the only thing they discuss at our teas."

They did not speak again until the taxi stopped.

As they stepped from the cab Charlotte moved toward the lobby of the spacious theatre entrance. She stood examining the exhibited photographs of the cast until the passing line of theatregoers brought her to the realization that Billy had not followed.

He was standing before the theatre, his evening coat flung over his arm, swinging his walking stick in an agitated motion. Charlotte noted the time and went quickly toward her husband.

"Dear," she said gently. "The show has begun and we'll be missing the first half of it if we don't hurry along."

"Know all that," growled Billy, "but I'm not going to let that fellow run off with a $50 bill."

"Certainly not," I gave him nothing yet. Didn't have change so he had to change that bill.

Didn't expect me to go chasing all over town to make him comfy, did you?"

"Where has he gone?"

"How do I know?"

"But suppose he doesn't come back with the money?" insisted Charlotte, a panicky little feeling gripping her.

"I've got the cab, haven't I? Give the fellow time. It isn't a simple matter to change money at this time of night. They've all banked it, before now. And besides—"

Billy looked around to see the outer doors of the theatre opened. The show had reached that stage of progress where fresh air was necessary. The ushers had opened the door for a brief interval.

"You'd better go in and see some of it," suggested Billy, savagely, digging into his pocket for the tickets. He drew out the slim envelope and extracted one of the tickets, handing it to Charlotte.

Charlotte hesitated. "Oh dear," she wailed. "I hate to do that. I wanted to go in with you, Billy. I wanted to make it such a nice chummy little party this evening and now—now—"

"Well, don't begin to weep about it here, for goodness' sake. Take the ticket and go in if you want to see that show. It doesn't look well to have you hanging around out here waiting for a taxi driver to bring back some fool change. Better do as I say."

Slowly she went into the lobby and presented her ticket. With the limp stub she was given in return, she followed the usher down the aisle. It was disturbing to the other patrons to have her stepping past them. And Charlotte felt miserable and embarrassed that she had to disturb everyone. She could not concentrate on the show. The music was light and gay. But she was wondering about Billy.

Toward the end of the act he appeared. As he climbed past the occupants he was doggedly apologetic. Charlotte looked up and smiled cheerfully.

"Get it?" she asked. "Of course," commented Billy. "And it was worth the wait for I told that taxi fellow what I thought of the whole blamed system. He won't forget me in a hurry. Took his number and I'll have him fired tomorrow for pulling a trick like that. He thought because I was with a lady I'd rather forget the change than miss her company and the show. Well, that's the time I fooled him." To Charlotte's embarrassment, several people in the seats before them turned around and looked distressed at Billy's interruption. "Please dear," begged Charlotte gently, "tell me about it later."

Billy frowned. Then he settled back. And silently they watched the performance. The evening that had been planned as such a gala occasion had completely lost its charm for Charlotte. She wished she had not come. She wondered if Billy felt the same way. She looked at him shyly, hoping to catch his expression, unaware of her scrutiny. Billy was grinning in boyish fashion, his eyes bright, his face animated. Billy was enjoying the show.

My Secrets of Charm

By Marilyn Miller.

LAST week I told my readers how they might begin to reduce the body at certain parts. I gave my advice on reducing the double chin. But there are other parts of the body where excess tissue may accumulate and throw the aesthetic lines of the figure into ugly distortion.

To be perfectly molded is the ambition of every one of us who would be beautiful. I cannot give any definite rule on weight control. There are women who look far more attractive when they have a little more weight than nature really intended them to carry. On the other hand, there are women who reduce vigorously until they are positively scrawny.

To keep the balance of proportion is the ideal. It can be done. But care must be given to the symmetry of the figure just as we would mold a beautiful statue.

Daily exercise is absolutely essential. Not only does the exercise help to burn up the excess tissue but it acts as a stimulant to the entire body. It keeps the blood stream running smoothly and carries nourishment to the undernourished parts as it carries off the impurities. In this way the excretory functions, too, receive their share of the necessary stimulation and we breathe out through the lungs and pores of the body the impurities which so often cause auto-intoxication and which we sometimes believe to be the uncomfortable sensation of overweight.

Open wide your bedroom window. Dress yourself as lightly, loosely and comfortably as possible. Begin by bending at the knees with arms outstretched. Count to yourself as you spring downward, upward, throwing out your arms on a level with your shoulders with each movement.

Bend forward slowly from the waistline. Bring the body back to its normal position. Bend slowly backward, holding this position for a moment, then bring the body back to normal position again. In this latter movement the hands are placed on the hips and kept there during the bending process.

Swing your arms out from the shoulders. Move your shoulder blades backward and forward until they feel warm with the tingle of the blood you have brought to this part. This exercise is excellent for reducing excess flesh on the back.

Do you begin to notice a pad of fat forming at the back of your neck? If you take it in time you will be able to reduce it easily. But if you permit it to accumulate, it will require long, strenuous treatment.

Massage is the remedy for the flesh that rolls into a pad at the back of the neck. The movement is downward, always downward as if one were smoothing it back from where it had arisen. It requires another person to successfully massage away this fat, as deep tissue massage is necessary. Avoid the use of an emollient in the massage. Knead the flesh with the fingers and palms of the hands until it glows pink. I do not advise the manipulation of the vertebrae by an unskilled person. The process must be done by an expert.

All sorts of electric devices have been invented for reducing weight. I do not advise the use of these, however, unless they are recommended by one's personal physician. The electric vibrator for massage is an excellent way of promoting circulation, but the hand massage is quite as good if given by another.

Deep tissue massage on the muscles of the legs will reduce the excess in the same method that the flesh at the back of the neck may be reduced. The natural way of reducing is the best. Avoid the use of drugs and patent medicines. They are dangerous to one's health. Watch your diet. And, with a daily habit of exercise, you can keep your figure as you wish it.

Question—My nails become very brittle even though I do not cut the cuticle. As I read your advice every week, would you be kind enough to tell me how I can remedy this?

Answer—Avoid the use of strong chemicals in your manicure. Rub a little olive oil into the cuticle of your nails each night before retiring and allow it to be absorbed. Soften the cuticle with warm water and soap and push it back gently. You are quite right in not cutting the cuticle.

When You Purchase Linens

THE thrifty housewife will begin to take inventory of her home furnishings about this time of year. It is well not to wait until the first days of Spring are at hand because the winter bargains in the department stores will have gone by. Most of the stores offer exceptional values in linens during the snowy days. They call them "white sales" and the woman who watches her house-keeping budget with an eye to saving a penny will do well to take advantage of these sales.

It is penny-wise and pound-foolish to wait until the liners have become thoroughly worn out before replenishing the stock. Aiding and discarding gradually, relieve the strain of a large output of money at one time and keeps the linen chests in good condition.

Look over your sheets, pillow slips, towels, handkerchiefs, etc. and take out those that need attention. Some of them may be worn slightly. These may be given a new lease on life by darning them on the sewing machine. It is important to be had for this purpose which fits any sewing machine. You stitch the fabric back and forth in straight lines and it strengthens up the worn fibres with the new threads. Tablecloths that are worn through in holes may be patched if the hole is at the centre or the corners. When using this cloth a fancy dolly may be spread over the patch and the cloth made to do longer service.

Pillow slips should be given regular attention if they are expected to withstand the many tubings to which they are subjected. The same applies to sheets. A shock or a pillow slip that shows a tear should be mended before sending to the laundry.

Be careful in purchasing your pillow slips that you get them large enough to allow the pillow to slip into them easily. If you select pillow slips into which the pillows must be stuffed, you can expect less wear. The seams are strained and break easily, especially during the laundering process.

One thrifty housewife passes on the hint that tea napkins may be made from worn linen tablecloths. When the cloth has to be come so worn in places that it is no longer usable as a tablecloth, it may be cut into small squares, hemstitched at the edge and used as tea napkins.

There are so many qualities and prices in household linens that one must be familiar with values if the money expended is to bring back an adequate return in wearing quality. Linen towels are soft to the face, but they do not wear as well as strong cotton. For general everyday wear, it is wiser to purchase soft cotton towels of good, durable fabric rather than to invest in fewer towels of pure linen. If linen towels are laundered at home and strong chemicals avoided in the process, they will last longer than when they must be sent to the laundry. The bleaching power used in the general laundry will make your towels white and attractive but the fibres will break under the strong chemical in a short time. Cotton, if it is of the strong variety, will withstand these tubings and give longer service.

It is advisable to purchase your household linens and cottons of standard makes, bearing labels of their makers, and you will be more assured of their wearing qualities.

Use for the Orange Peel

THE thrifty housewife will find innumerable ways of using up the orange peels that are left from breakfast. Of course, good care should be taken that they are kept clean and fresh when they are removed from the oranges that are served sliced. The best way to keep the orange peel fresh is to place it in an earthen bowl, cover it, and set in the ice box until used.

Orange parings may be cut into fascinating shapes to garnish a fancy salad. Orange peel may be candied into a delicious confection. It may be ground fine and stewed down in a marmalade. Or it may be given a prominent place among the dressing table cosmetics which help to keep Milady at her best.

Purchase an ounce of gum arabic at the drug store. Dissolve it in a little water and to this mixture add a teaspoonful of witch-hazel and the parings of several oranges ground to a fine pulp. This makes an excellent paste for whitening and softening the hands. It is a little strong for the face, but it may be used with good results on the neck, hands and arms to keep them in attractive condition.

There is really little waste in the kitchen when the thrifty housewife decides to concentrate on using up the by-products. And the orange is one of the wastes which can be turned to many uses.

Details of Costume That Make for Charm

IT is to the smaller details of dress we owe the charm of costume.

Granted that our frock, coat, slippers and hat are strictly according to the latest dictate of fashion, there still remains those accessories of costume which must be in accord with fashion's latest fancy.

Take, for example, belts. Never before were belts so important to the charm of a frock or coat. We knew them once as lengths of leather or silk that defined the waistline. We know them now as bits of color, perhaps the only trimming on an otherwise simple frock. They may be of vividly colored square heads strung on two lengths of elastic. The belt may be fashioned of a length of brilliant leather which fastens into a wide, Oriental buckle at front. Belts have a way of fitting snugly if they are up to the last word from the realm of style. But they must be vivid and fasten with a cabochon or buckle.

What the Parisian woman learned long ago about the fascination of earrings, we are beginning to believe in our smart American sets-to-day. Ear-rings have gradually crept into the art world and jewelers have adopted some of the designs from art centers of the world and copied them into charming duplicates. The ear-rings for which Cleopatra gained some of her fame as a beauty have been exploited in some of the smart jewelry shops. Select your ear-rings with one, two or three drops, but make certain they have dull stone settings and perhaps a bit of old gold or silver chain showing here and there. The flat ear-rings which we wore a few seasons back are out of style. Only where they are decidedly becoming, where they have grown to be a part of the picture which every woman strives to effect, are they accepted.

You may wear your dressy ear-rings in the afternoon to informal affairs and be in good taste. Since ear-rings have become such a popular accessory they are no longer restricted to the glowing splendor of the evening lights.

Necklaces! They have enjoyed such a wide variety and have been taken as such a definite part of the costume for so many seasons that there seems little left to say of them. That they are still in vogue despite the warning which modistes sent out a few months ago, is no longer a doubt. You see gay necklaces worn for almost every occasion and with almost every type of gown except the strictly tailored costume of morning. Cut from sparkling stone or strung of wooden beads boasting a gay design in enamel, the beads may be long or short.

Do you remember those days when every well-dressed woman kept a box of collars in the upper left-hand drawer of her dresser? Most of us did that sort of thing not so long ago. There was an assortment of fine flax that was tacked at the neckline of our best serge to give it a modish note. There was perhaps a sports collar of pique, and very likely a wide collar of colorful silk.

The sacheted collar box may be relegated for a while, now that fashion permits only of the very wide, soft lace berthe. Those of us who have lived through the berthe era of some years ago, will have a berthe of this variety. It is the only collar which is deemed in keeping with the latest bulletin of fashion's dictate. It is shirred slightly and worn over a dark frock, preferably of chiffon velvet or velour.

The throw-scarf has become cultivated to meet our modern needs. But a few seasons ago the throw-scarf was part of the sports apparel. We accepted it as part of the wardrobe with this idea in view, but it has thrown off its rough surface and comes to the women of fashion now with a silk or sheer, crocheted in intricate patterns and worn with good taste, on the tailored costume for more formal wear.

Timely Hints

THIS is the time of year to begin using up your canned goods. Spring is not far off and fresh vegetables and fruits will begin to appear.

The Winter hat may be freshened up to complete its service by the addition of a new flower or a bit of metal embroidery.

Put out the Winter dessert recipes now and paste them in your cook book. You may wish to use them next season and they may not appear.

The Winter Tea Party

THE tea party that is given in mid-Winter differs in menu from that of the warmer days. To be appetizing, when the chill winds are blowing outdoors, the hostess should see that there are foods of the more nourishing variety than the crisp greens with which the tea party of Summer is made appetizing.

The hostess should serve a few dainties, and if she selects them with care they will be relished far more than the greens which we associate with daintiness of service.

There is, for example, the peanut butter sandwich served on white or graham bread that is dainty and warming. The bread may be toasted, the peanut butter spread on one slice and the sandwich then cut in its particular shape with a sharp sandwich cutter. To add that appetizing freshness to the sandwich, a sprig of parsley or water-cress may be spread over its top. The greens may be chopped fine and sprinkled over the creamy brown top of the peanut butter to give it an added attractiveness.

Cream cheese and olives, mixed together into a paste and spread on toasted crackers forms one of the most nourishing foods we have. Served as a dainty tid-bit for the tea party of Winter days, it makes an attractive delicacy that is nourishing as well. Strips of pimento may be cut into fancy shapes and spread on the top of the cream cheese to give it a dash of color and add a zestful flavor to the dainty cracker sandwich.

Walnuts are heat producing. In fact, any variety of nut you may care to use for the Winter tea-party dainties will be nourishing. Walnuts contain a large percentage of oil and are therefore particularly nourishing. Chop your walnuts with cream cheese and serve on brown bread for another variety of sandwich.

Fancy cakes, those richer varieties that boast trimmings of whipped cream and soft spun sugar are in excellent keeping with the Winter foods. Bon bons, candies of any and all varieties are well to serve.

Where the sandwiches are not of the heavier food values, cocoa may be served and the tea party still keep its traditional name. The thoughtful hostess will prepare both cocoa and tea during the Winter months so that her guests may take a choice.

The Housewife Says—

FOR white base boards, a feather duster is more desirable than a cloth for cleaning. The duster blows the dust from the surface where the cloth is likely to work it into the grain of the paint.

Save scraps of pork fat and render them out. This suet makes a delicious flavoring for foods in which they are fried.

Instead of removing window drapes to clean them, try brushing them in a downward motion with a wide, soft brush.

Brush your outer garments before hanging them in the wardrobe and they will remain in good condition for a longer time.

If you need a laundered handkerchief in a hurry, wash it out and smooth it flat on a mirror or window pane. It will dry as if ironed.

Purchase your coffee in bean and grind it yourself. Ground coffee loses its flavor quickly.

Have strings on all your window shades. Pulling by the string will keep the shades clean and neat and roll them straight.

To oil polished furniture wring a wool cloth in cold water. Moisten lightly with cedar oil and the surfaces will be cleaned and polished at the same time.

Dampen your broom a little before going over floors. The dampness will hold the particles of fuzz that fly about.

When laundering bureau scarfs pull the lace edging rather than iron it. It will appear like new again.

Poultry, alive higher; fowls 24; springs 20; broilers 15.

CHICAGO CATTLE MARKET

Chicago—Cattle receipts showed a greater accumulation Saturday than they have for some time. A further weakness developed. While asking prices virtually were unchanged, many traders were making slight concessions to keep the goods moving. Buyers were not interested apparently, outside of immediate requirements, the quality was reported good for this time of the year.

ENGLAND WOULD TAX GAMBLERS

Nearly $500,000,000 Exchange Hands In Betting Circles

By Associated Press

London—The consistently hard up British government, always seeking fresh ways and means to replenish its coffers, is said to be casting covetous eyes on the huge sums of money known to be changing hands constantly in England through betting transactions.

The chancellor of the exchequer a short time ago requested the quiet islands of Jersey and Guernsey, and the Isle of Man, to contribute much more generously to the expenses of the empire than has been their habit, and it is not believed these sources will refuse. But something like $500,000,000 a year is lost and won by British betters, according to the estimates, and a good round tax on this sum would produce a tidy revenue.

All would be relatively easy for the treasury were it not for the disconcerting fact that to tax betting would legalize the practice, a step which would create an upsurge from all sorts and conditions of people throughout the country.

There are nearly 30,000 bookmakers in England who handle this $500,000,000 each year, not only for bets placed on horse races, but on football games and dog races. The betting fever pervades not alone the big clubs in London but practically every factory in England. It is even said that in some factories intimidation is resorted to in order to get girls to bet, and their refusal so to do sometimes makes their lives unbearable.

It is argued that the licensing of bookmakers, the abolition of touts, and the adoption of the totalizer would greatly curtail gambling and abolish many of the present abuses, and that a bill in the Commons along these lines would be well supported.

GERMANY RESUMES ORIENTAL TRADE

By Associated Press

Berlin—Germany is rapidly regaining its trade in the Far East, in spite of the fact that its islands in the Pacific were taken away by the Versailles Treaty, and business was interrupted for years by war conditions and the internment of its business men.

For the first nine months of 1922, Germany sold Japan goods valued at $6,500,000 yen. In 1913, German exports to Japan for the entire twelve months aggregated only $8,000,000 yen. The yen is worth about fifty cents.

In 1921, Germany sold China goods valued at 20,000,000 taels. An increase is anticipated in the figures for 1922 which German exporters believe will make the year's business greater than that of 1913, which was 28,300,000 taels. The tael is worth about one dollar and forty cents.

Before the war Germany had between four and five thousand citizens in China engaged in various commercial pursuits. It is estimated now that two thirds of these are again in China, endeavoring to reestablish their business connections. German consuls have been lack in all the principal business centers of China for some time, including the Tsingtau concession which Japan wrested from Germany at the beginning of the great war, and which has recently been evacuated by the Japanese and turned back to China.

German's ambitious plans for vast territorial possessions in the Pacific which might form the basis for great naval and commercial power, have been defeated, at least for the present by the loss of Tsingtau, the Marshall and Caroline Islands, New Guinea and other South Sea possessions. But German steamship lines have resumed their sailings to the Orient and are making an effort to regain their lost business.
